DEMOCRATS TO BE INVITED TO TAX SESSIONS

Expect Coolidge to Open Doors for Private Hearings to Party

ASK NON-PARTISAN VOTE

President Would Avoid Filler and Other Delays in Congress

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—President Coolidge has fired the opening gun in the battle to determine where the credit or blame for the present tax law may ultimately rest.

Recognizing that the Democrats in the last session out-manuevered the Republicans and finally forced the insertion into the revenue bill of many provisions drafted by the minority, Mr. Coolidge is preparing himself against delay as well as other contingencies in asking for non-partisan consideration of taxation.

The Democrats will take the president literally. They will wait to see whether the ways and means committee of the house has a "separate session of Republicans" or whether the Democrats are invited to participate.

In the past, efforts to get non-partisan consideration have lasted about a week during which time the committee would hold full sessions but also private conferences later and even meetings of the Republican majority.

THE INVITED DEMOCRATS

The president's intention that he wants non-partisan action is taken to mean that he himself will start the ball rolling by inviting Democratic senators to the White House to consult with him before the opening of congress and immediately thereafter.

There are a number of Democrats leaning toward the Democratic theory of tax reduction and have presented even more extreme proposals. They will wish to be consulted, too.

MUST AVOID DELAYS

Mr. Coolidge is particularly in that in the next session which is a short one there will be all sorts of opportunities for filibusters and delays and that non-partisan consideration is so essential that he can make sacrifices. For it has always been assumed by political leaders that a non-partisan action usually requires the long run to the benefit of the majority party. That's why the minority is not always willing to forego its rights to write bills of its own.

The pressure behind the Democrats, however, in recent years has been unusually intense especially when a bill has been before congress. Businessmen and bankers in the south have indicated to their representatives on Capitol hill that the political game must not be permitted to interfere with prompt passage of pending tax legislation. Mr. Coolidge will get non-partisan consideration for the very good reason that the Democrats will not willingly place themselves in the position of obstructing either a tax credit or tax rebate.

EVANGELINE BOOTH KEEPS 'ARMY' POST

Brother Fails to Dislodge National Commander of Salvation Army

New York—(P)—Efforts of the past six years by her brother to dislodge Evangeline Booth as American commander of the Salvation Army have ended with a reorganization that leaves her in the post of national commander.

W. Bramwell Booth of London, commander of the world-wide organization tried in 1920 and 1923 to remove her on the grounds that their father, founder of the Salvation Army, had established shifting officers as an organization policy. His efforts brought protests that resulted each time in her reappointment for three year terms. She announces now that she will continue indefinitely as national commander.

MELLON ACCEPTS PLAN FOR RAILROAD LOANS

Washington, D. C.—(P)—Secretary Mellon has tentatively accepted the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad of its war-time government loans, provided the proposal is promptly executed.

Two separate loans are involved the first of which is a direct loan by the government of $25,000,000. Another loan for which the treasury holds $2,000,000 collateral which has depreciated 10 to 17,000,000, would be settled by arrangement for the payment of the payment of $17,000,000 plus $2,200,000 in interest and the deposit of $3,000,000 in preferred stock in the new company.

TEXTILE WORKER WINS WEALTH IN VAN HEUSEN SUIT

Philadelphia—(P)—Until Wednesday a worker in a textile mill in this city, John B. Bolton Thursday was listed as wealthy, possibly a millionaire.

The sudden change in his financial standing, which came through the settlement out of court of a suit for $50,000,000 brought by him in Boston against John H. Van Heusen, collar manufacturer, will not for the present, however, alter the plans of his daughter Eliza, a stenographer in a bank.

Her alarm clock was set for the usual hour Thursday morning. She said she would report for work promptly. Bolton said he would not know exactly how much his fortune would be until he consulted his attorneys.

In his suit Bolton claimed that through his knowledge as a wearer he had invented the material used by Van Heusen in the manufacture of semi-rigid collars and that Van Heusen had agreed to pay him 30 per cent of the net profits.

Special Speeds Toward Kansas City; Dancer's Party Leaves Train

Miss Fuller, her press agent, Miss Mary Birkhead, and her secretary, Miss Gabrielle Bloch, left of their own accord to keep a business engagement in New York.

They departed in a special car with the understanding they could remain with the party as long as they desired as guests of Queen Marie and Col. John Carroll, host to her majesty.

FOND DU LAC PAVILION BURNED BY 'FIREBUGS'

PHEW! WHAT CAN A POOR GAME WARDEN DO WITH THIS LOT?

St. Paul—(P)—Commissioner J. F. Gould of the state game and fish department, Thursday was confronted with the proposition of disposing of 80 live skunks which an ambitious game warden confiscated.

Warden T. K. Fikken of Ada, wired his chief: "I confiscated 80 live skunks in the township of Shelly. What do you want me to do with them. Wire answer."

The commissioner was not sure Thursday just what he would tell his warden because the skunks cannot be shipped to St. Paul headquarters as confiscated goods usually are.

The express company refuses to accept the animals unless they are deodorized and the state, Mr. Gould says, is not interested in deodorizing skunks.

President Delivers Liberty Memorial Address at Kansas City

Kansas City, Mo.—(P)—President Coolidge served formal notice here Thursday that the United States would adhere to the world court only on the conditions laid down by the senate.

The position of the chief executive, who from the first of his administration had urged American membership in an Armistice day speech in which he discussed world problems and called formally for the first time for conscription of capital as well as man power in time of war.

The address was in dedication of the Liberty memorial, erected by the people of this city in memory of its citizens who served in the world war. Delivered at the hour when eight years ago the Armistice went into effect, it was devoted to a discussion of problems arising out of the war with a restating of the position of the Washington government on many questions of world interest while mention was made of national antagonisms against this country.

MUCH MISREPRESENTATION

"A permanent court of international justice has been established," the president said in setting forth his position on the world court, "to which nations may voluntarily resort for an adjudication of their differences. It has been subject to much misrepresentation, which has resulted in much misconception of its principles and objects among our people. I have advocated adherence to such a court by this nation on condition that the statute or treaty creating it be amended to meet our views. The senate has adopted a resolution for that purpose."

"While the nations involved cannot yet be said to have made a final determination, and from most of them no answer has been received many of them have indicated that they are unwilling to concur in the conditions adopted by the resolution of the senate. While no final decision can be made by our government until final answers are received the situation has been sufficiently developed so that I feel warranted in saying that I do

ASK SENATE PROBE IN WEST VIRGINIA

Congressman Taylor Claims Irregularities in Methods of Rival

Charleston, W. Va.—(P)—The senate campaign funds committee was asked Thursday by Representative J. Alfred Taylor, Democrat, to extend its investigation to West Virginia, if it has jurisdiction. Representative Taylor was defeated by 33 votes for election in the Sixth West Virginia congressional district by E. T. England, Republican.

Charges of vote-buying and other irregularities were made by Mr. Taylor in a telegram to Senator James A. Reed, chairman of the committee in which he requested the investigation.

Although a belief existed here that the committee had power to investigate election of a member to the lower house of congress, there having been no election of a United States senator here this year, Mr. Taylor was uncertain about the matter.

TRY TO REFUTE CHICAGO CLAIM IN WATER SUIT

Six Great Lakes States Attack Illinois Right to Divert Water

Washington—(P)—Six Great Lakes states continued their onslaught Thursday on Chicago's diversion of Lake Michigan waters, with testimony offered to refute two of the personal arguments from the defendants.

Appearing before Charles E. Hughes, appointed by the supreme court to take testimony in the case, the complainants attacked the contention that individual states are without constitutional authority to maintain their actions against the diversion. They also sought to refute the defense claim that the Chicago Sanitary canal forms a vital link in the lakes-to-gulf waterway.

In answer to the contention that the states have no direct interest in the water levels, the complainants directed examinations of army engineers to testimony as to the burden of the diversions upon channel and harbor maintenance by state, municipal and private corporations.

BRITISH MINERS MAY RESUME NEGOTIATIONS

London—(P)—The miners delegate conference, by a card vote, have given its executive committee power to resume negotiations with the government to end the long coal tie-up. This action indicates that the miners have given way on the question of hours of work.

The executives are prepared to inform the government that they are willing to accept a district settlement both on hours and wages subject to the safeguard of a code of national principles or an appeal to a tribunal.

"The work that he does would not be done if there was not such a class

WOMAN KILLED IN CRASH ON FRENCH ROAD

One Dead and Three Injured as Automobile and Street Car Collide

One woman was killed and three persons were injured, one seriously when a Ford coupe containing four persons collided with a Wisconsin Traction, Light Heat and Power interurban car shortly before 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the French road crossing, about two miles from Appleton.

The woman is Mrs. Nick Hietpas, 52, French road. Her skull was fractured and she died instantly.

The injured are her three children. Mario, 12, has a fractured skull and was unconscious at St. Elizabeth hospital all night but regained consciousness Thursday morning. Harold, 12, suffered injuries to his pelvis and Bert, 18, the driver, was bruised and scratched. The boys are not in seriously hurt but the girl's condition is said to be critical.

Stories of how the accident occurred vary but examination of the street car indicates that the automobile struck it on the side, just to the rear of the front door frame. The street car was on its way to Appleton from Kimberly. The motorman did not reach the track but struck the car ahead of it, or if he skidded against it. At any rate examination of the street car indicates that he did not reach the track but struck the street car on the side. There is little or no damage to the front of the street car, it was said.

The automobile, it was said, was the property of Jacob Hietpas, another son of the family. Bert was taking his mother and other members of the party home from a visit to Mrs. Peter Vanden Heuvel home at Little Chute.

Mrs. Hietpas is survived by her widower, four sons, John, Jacob, Bert and Harold, and one daughter, Marie.

BELGIAN PRINCESS ENGAGED, IS RUMOR

Royal Parents Deny Betrothal of Marie-Jose to Norwegian Prince

Brussels—(P)—While Crown Prince Leopold and Princess Astrid of Sweden, were on their honeymoon Thursday there came talk of another possible wedding between Belgium's little Princess Marie-Jose and Crown Prince Olav of Norway. Marie-Jose is 20 years, and Olav three years her senior.

Court officials, as is their wont, deny that a marriage is contemplated between the son of King Haakon and King Albert's only daughter, but they denied that Prince Leopold and Princess Astrid were to be married until a few weeks ago. Therefore aristocratic circles in Brussels are confident that they will get invitations to a second wedding next spring.

MAID ON STAND IN HALL MILLS MURDER TRIAL

Barbara Tough Testifies Pastor's Love Affair Was 'Common Gossip'

Somerville, N. J.—(P)—The biggest drama in the history of this small town was stopped for a patriotic interlude Thursday. A protest which Alexander Simpson, special state prosecutor, said he had received from representatives of the American legion caused an eleventh hour change in the original plan to hold court on Armistice day, as usual, for the Hall-Mills murder trial.

Late Wednesday afternoon the state called to the stand Barbara Tough, who was a maid for Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall when her husband, the Rev. Edward W. Hall, pastor of a New Brunswick church, was slain four years ago with Mrs. Eleanor D. Mills, choir singer. Mrs. Hall and brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens, are being tried for the murder of Mrs. Hall.

Mrs. Tough testified that nothing unusual happened in the Hall home, night of the murder nor immediately afterwards. Miss Tough said the love affair between the minister and the choir singer was a subject of "common gossip" among members of the guild of his church. She told of discovering Mrs. Mills sitting on Mr. Hall's knees about four years before the crime. Simpson, contending that jealousy and hate were the motive for the crime, has maintained in court that Mrs. Hall must have known about the love affair.

Dr. Alfred L. Smith of New Brunswick testified that Mr. Hall eight months before the slaying had engaged him to treat Mrs. Mills for illness and to perform an operation for kidney trouble. The witness said the minister agreed to pay him $10 a month for twenty months, but that he received only $20 of the promised $200.

Superior—(P)—One boy was killed and two other persons probably fatally injured in an accident at Winnebago, 30 miles east of here, late Wednesday, when a school bus was struck by a South Shore train. Tony Slaviero was killed, and five persons injured severely.

The bus had stopped on one side of the track to permit several of the nine school children to get out. Apparently not realizing that a train was approaching, the driver crossed the tracks when the train struck the bus broadside and carried it 80 yards down the right of way.

The two seriously injured were Francis Sartor, 12, and Leo Stecker, 12. All the children lived on farms in the vicinity.

PAY TRIBUTE AT UNKNOWN HERO GRAVES

Nations Pause in Tasks to Commemorate Armistice of 8 Years Ago

FOCH PLEADS FOR UNITY Britain and Her Empire Lay Wreaths at Biers of Unknown Heroes

Washington—(P)—The world paused a moment Thursday in the frenzied struggle for existence and assemblage to recollect that exactly eight years ago there had come the winking word from France that gripped men's hearts as no other message could have done.

The great war was over—the roaring, destroying guns were stilled at last. The boys were coming home! They came and grateful nations poured out a lavish greeting to gallant sons.

Then came one home to America—dead and unknown who could not hear the cheering. About him centered such a majestic tribute to all who lay dead in France as price of victory, that it gave Armistice day a new and solemn meaning to all Americans.

Thursday, as always, the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington cemetery was the heart of American observance of Armistice day. In the words of congress and of the president's proclamation, it typified our gratitude for peace and our desire for "continuation of friendly relation with all people."

In other countries, too, ceremonies centered about the tomb of the unknown. Representatives of the far-flung dominions of the British empire, in conference at London, joined in England's tribute to the day, standing with members of the cabinet, King George, the Prince of Wales, and the duke of York laid wreaths at the foot of the cenotaph of England's unknown.

In Poland great ceremonies were arranged to celebrate both Armistice day, a national holiday, and the anniversary of the release of Marshal Pilsudski from German captivity.

COOLIDGE IN KANSAS CITY

Everywhere it was guided by the desire of each community. In Missouri it centered about the memorial in England's war cemetery to the day, standing where President Coolidge went to voice again the will of his countrymen for peace and friendship with all people. That duty alone could have drawn him away from his usual Armistice day journey to Arlington to lay a wreath in person on the tomb of the unknown. Army commanders of the war dead everywhere paid hours. Flags were at half staff. Troops were ordered

SUPERVISORS PAYE WAY FOR BATTLE OVER TAX FIXING

Get Resolution Urging Legislature to Make Change in Law

Firing the opening gun of a battle to take the final decision in tax matters away from the Wisconsin Tax commission, a resolution was introduced to the county board of supervisors Thursday to petition the legislature to change in the present tax statutes so that a commission of final appeal could be appointed by circuit judges.

This opens the way for tax assessment and action expected to come on the floor Friday as under the rules all resolutions lay over a day before formally presented for a vote.

The resolution follows: Whereas, that under the present procedure for the appointment of county taxes as provided in Chapter 76.61 and 76.64 it is impossible for county boards to make an appropriation as determined by them.

Therefore Be It Resolved that this County Board petition the legislature for a repeal of the act of 1911, and "conclusion" of subsection 10 of Chapter 76.61 and allow an appeal to go to the circuit court, the court to appoint five commissioners, the assessor of incomes, county board and tax commission to turn over to these commissioners all data and figures used in this appropriation, and these commissioners to make an appropriation of county taxes and report back to the circuit judge, then if contesting parties are dissatisfied they could appeal to the state supreme court.

Be It Further Resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to the interim tax committee at Madison and a copy sent to all county boards in the state of Wisconsin and to the senator and assemblymen of Outagamie county.

Anton Jansen, chairman of the finance committee, asked that income assessor Leo J. Toonen be requested to appear before the board Friday when the report of the committee on equalization is to be brought up for discussion.

Representing the city of Appleton Mayor Rule has been interested in the war being waged against the tax commission's appointments after the recent revenue act and considerable general interest in the issue is aroused, it is indicated.

The towns and several of the villages are apparently satisfied with the contemplated tax apportionments, but Appleton is leading in protest.

32 ALIENS MADE U. S. CITIZENS

Impressive Program at Naturalization - Hearing at Courthouse

With Judge Edgar V. Werner, honorary master of ceremonies 32 citizens were ushered into full rights of citizenship at impressive ceremonies held in the circuit courtroom Thursday morning.

Women of the Women's Relief corps distributed flags and Daughters of the American Revolution gave manuals of citizenship to each petitioner and several patriotic songs were sung by a quartet composed of Mrs. L. E. Dunn, Mrs. Wilbur Johnson, George Nixon, and J. Raymond Walsh. At noon a banquet was given in honor of the citizens by the Lions' club at the Conway hotel.

Frank Wheeler, adjutant of the Oney Johnson, American Legion, presided for his organization which arranged the program.

Short speeches outlining the duties and privileges of the new citizens featured the exercises at the courthouse and it was expected that informal talks on similar topics would be outstanding events at the banquet. Several women were in the class.

CAL FAVORS WEALTH DRAFT DURING WAR

not intend to ask the senate to modify its position. I do not believe the senate would take favorable action on any such proposal, and unless the requirements of the senate resolution are met by the other interested nations I can see no prospect of this country adhering to the court."

CONSCRIPTION FOR ALL

In speaking of conscription, Mr. Coolidge said that it "is more and more becoming the conviction of students of adequate defense that in time of national peril the government should be able to call into its service all of its man power and all of its property under such terms and conditions that it may completely avoid making a sacrifice of one and a profiteer of another."

WANTS ADEQUATE PREPAREDNESS

After asserting that the Armistice of 1918 "did not mark the end of the war for the world," Mr. Coolidge declared for adequate military, naval and aviation preparedness while he emphasized that the United States does not seek to be a military power and "cherishes no imperialistic designs." At the same time, he reiterated the desire of the Washington government for a lessening of competitive armaments.

"We have not lost entered into treaties with the great powers," he said, "eliminating to a large degree competition in naval armaments. We are engaged in negotiations to broaden and extend this humane and enlightened policy and are willing to make reasonable sacrifices to secure its further adoption."

NEED FOR MODERATION

"Our government," he said in this connection, "has steadily maintained the policy of the recognition and sanctity of international obligations and the performance of international covenants. It has not believed that the world, economically, financially, or morally, could rest upon any other secure foundation. But such a policy does not include extortion or oppression. We have therefore undertaken to deal with other countries in accordance with these principles, believing that their application is for the welfare of the world and the advancement of civilization."

Reports that Europe dislikes America were met by the president with the statement that he wanted "to be sure that the attitude and acts of the American government are right," and that he was "willing to intrust to others the full responsibility for the results of their own behavior."

"If we are to have peace," he asserted, "we are to live in accordance with the dictates of a higher life. We shall avoid any national spirit of suspicion, distrust, and hatred toward other nations. The old world has for generations indulged itself in this form of luxury. The results have been ruinous. It is not for us who are more fortunately circumstanced to pass judgment upon those who are less favored. In their place we must have done worse. But it is our duty to be warned by their example and to take full advantage of our own position. We want understanding, good will and friendly relations between ourselves and all other people. The first requisite for this purpose is a friendly attitude on our own part."

Senior Girl Again Wins Post-Crescent Essay Prize

Miss Margaret Meyer, 222 E. Wisconsin-ave, a senior won the third weekly prize of $2.50 offered by The Post-Crescent to the high school student who wrote the best essay on the biggest news story which appeared in The Post-Crescent during the week. Second prize went to Miss Martha Jentz, 1033 W. College-ave, also a senior.

Both young women selected local stories as the most important of the week. Miss Meyer's essay deals with the chamber of commerce's proposal to acquire a landing field and Miss Jentz discusses the number of arrests made by the police in October.

Following is Miss Meyer's essay: "The Chamber of Commerce talks of securing a landing field near city." This topic should appeal to the interest of every citizen of Appleton and its vicinity.

A landing field could be obtained and prepared for use at a comparatively low cost considering the direct benefit it would give to Appleton and its community.

With the great progress of the world today, it is readily seen that air service is increasing and that "commercial aviation is becoming an important factor, economically." Cities which will have landing fields will therefore be at an advantage commercially and economically.

Appleton is already an industrial center, a landing field would make it very important commercially.

Considering this fact we can easily see that a field of this sort near Appleton would aid us in all our civic enterprises.

Our industry and business would be increased. Supplies would be bought at our business concerns. As transportation by air is faster and more sure than any other, our industrial concerns could obtain supplies sooner and thus promote their business. Express and mail would be obtained

BOARD CONSIDERS NEW ROAD TO WIPE OUT GRADE CROSSING

Supervisors' Morning Meet to Be Guests at Asylum Dinner

Thursday morning the county board of supervisors warmed up to their work and a mass of routine business was cleared away in a short session before adjournment was taken to Friday morning in order that the board could leave the courthouse to attend dinner at the county asylum as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Flanagan.

Inspection of the asylum property was to be made before and after the noonday dinner and later the board was to travel to McCarthy's crossing, near Kaukauna, to personally view proposed road changes which would eliminate what is said to be one of the most dangerous grade crossings in the state.

It is estimated that proposed improvements of the road would cost approximately $5,000 but if made, members of the highway committee declare there will remain no dangerous railroad crossings between Appleton and Green Bay. A considerable route is contemplated, the resolution brought before the board indicates.

A resolution proposing a special tax for the village of Hortonville to collect $278.60 for bridge aid was presented. The county sued in the village in August for approximately $2,000 but the case was dismissed by Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner.

WOMAN COMPLAINS SALESMAN ROBBED AND DRUGGED HER

But Police Are a Little Skeptical of Story of Chloroforming

Claiming that she was overcome from the fumes of some mysterious drug Mrs. Bertha Lowenhagen, 612 W. Summer-st., has reported to police that she was lulled to unconsciousness Tuesday afternoon while interviewing a soap salesman, whom she declares, ransacked a desk in her home and stole $20.

According to Mrs. Lowenhagen's story she allowed the canvasser to enter her home in an attempt to make a sale.

Smell this piece of soap, she alleges he said during his sales harangue.

Smell it again, the canvasser is reported to have said as he passed the cake of heavily scented hand soap under the woman's nostrils.

Within a few moments, Mrs. Lowenhagen told Chief George T. Prim, she became drowsy and sank into a "drugged" state of coma. The woman told police that she remained in this condition for probably 20 minutes.

In her report to the authorities Mrs. Lowenhagen said she believed she had been victimized through the use of "chloroform."

Semi-official inquiry among local druggists and chemists reveals an opinion that this drug is not potent enough to produce such an effect on such casual administration.

Although apparently unknown to Appleton scientific men police concede the possibility that perhaps some obscure drug of anesthetic properties may have been used by the marauder.

Police efforts Thursday were centered in a round-up of house to house salesmen in an attempt to locate the suspect.

"Old Swimmin' Hole" Of Riley Is Not Quiet Now

Greenfield, Ind., —(P)—The laughter of children at play, drowns out the gurgle of the water under the drift just below" the "old swimmin' hole" and few of the surroundings as James Whitcomb Riley knew them, during his boyhood days here, remain.

A Riley memorial park with a playground borders Brandywine creek at the "old swimmin' hole" which the Hoosier poet immortalized in rhyme.

A railroad bridge, an electric line trestle and the National Trail, an important East and West motor highway, cross the creek near the "swimmin' hole." The pastoral quietude of the spot, broken only by the hoarse solo of a bullfrog, or the plaintive call of a dove, as Riley knew it six decades ago, has been lost in the march of the years. Few of the heavily foliaged trees that lined the banks.

"In the long lazy days "Where the humdrum of school made so many runaways. "How pleasant was the journey down the old dusty lane "Where the tracks of our bare feet was all print so plain" remain. The Brandywine itself, once a sizable stream, now is sluggish and shallow and contains scarcely enough water for swimming.

HOME A MUSEUM
Greenfield basks contentedly in the glory that came to her favorite son. The distinction of having been his birthplace and the center of many of the scenes he sketched in rhyme, is one of the city's most stable commercial assets.

The severe two-story frame house on Main-st. where Riley was born is occupied by his widowed sister-in-law and her sister. For ten cents, visitors are permitted to roam the rooms and finger the possessions of Riley which still are retained there.

Before he discovered a bent for verse making, Riley was a sign painter and several examples of his craftsmanship are preserved here.

Rearrange Lobby.
A change was made in the lobby of the men's department of the F. M. C. A. Thursday. The reading and visiting room was moved to the south end of the building and the checker tables and writing room was shifted to the north end. The change was made to give the readers the sunny side of the lobby.

Old Time Farmers Lament Passing Of Huskin' Bee

"Them Days IS GONE FOREVER." And so is the old fashioned corn husking bee with its pumpkin pie, apple cider, apples and nuts and home made candy and cakes galore, according to farmers living near Appleton. The corn husking machine has eliminated the necessity for the corn husking bee when the farmers for miles around would gather at a certain farm and husk all the corn in one evening.

Corn husking bees were one of the favorite fall social events and the farmers, especially the young men and women of "courtin' age," would eagerly await this annual event. "Ma" and "Pa" would furnish the cats and the drinks and many were the jokes and lones and loud the laughter at the husking bee. When the work was completed there would be dancing to the tune of the neighborhood musician's violin or concertina or maybe there would be a spelling match.

But these happy social events are a thing of the past except that once in a great while an Old Timer gives a husking bee just for old time's sake. Farmers in Outagamie-co are husking corn at this time, but grow of machinery is heard instead of boisterous and joyous laughter. "Science and invention is wonderful," one Old Timer said, "but they can't invent anything to take the place of the good old huskin' bee."

Werner, general secretary of the association, who held that position when the club was organized, also gave a short talk.

The annual banquet for teachers of Appleton high school will be next Wednesday evening, the regular meeting night, the club decided. The banquet will start at 6:30.

"I read of what Tanlac had done for so many people and began taking it. This wonderful tonic cleaned out my system. I now eat everything without a sign of trouble and sleep like a child, and can do my work without tiring. Thanks to Tanlac."

Consideration of Court-

Neenah—The city of Neenah is assessed $8,988 for a school tax by Winnebago county, according to a resolution presented at the Wednesday meeting of the county board. The resolution providing a school tax levy for the coming year was the first business before the board and was adopted immediately. The resolution provided for the apportionment of this school tax among the towns, villages and cities of the county. The city of Oshkosh will be taxed $39,992 and the city of Neenah $10,288. The town of Menasha will be taxed $1,044 and town of Neenah $836. The total tax voted was $50,662, which is $4,763.14 larger than $45,898.

Monday afternoon was set aside for consideration of the courthouse site. The proposition was voted down at the general election a week ago but the board believes that a material saving can be effected for the county if a site for a courthouse is purchased at this time. It is possible that the county may be eligible to receive $250,000 state aid toward the project. Winnebago county, according to a communication from state highway commission, will be entitled to receive state aid in the amount of approximately $150,000 for road building and maintenance next year.

PLAN OF SHOWING
OFF SCOUT WORKConsider Troop Demonstrations to Show What Scouts
Can Do

Menasha—The meeting of scout leaders at the Menasha Wooden Ware company cafeteria Wednesday, was well attended. The topics of discussion were the recent inter-city rally held at Appleton Nov. 5, and a proposed rally or demonstration to be held soon in Neenah.

E. H. Justice of the Chicago office told the guests of his experience with a scout circus or demonstration in Indiana, and C. M. Finnell, also of the Chicago office, told of his experience with a scout circus in Springfield, Ill. A point developed was that it might be well to substitute some type of troop demonstration for the competitive events that have been used in the past. NEW GERMAN DIRIGIBLE
WILL BURN MARSH GAS

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany
(AP)—Construction secrets of the world's largest and first gas-burning dirigible, the LZ 127, have been partially disclosed by Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander.

The gas fuel is marsh gas or carburetted hydrogen with the chemical formula CH₄. Much lighter and more efficient than gasoline or benzol, Dr. Eckener said, the draws its greatest advantage from the fact that when it explodes in the engine cylinders one of the products is water vapor. The vapor, passing out through the exhausts of the five 429-horsepower Maybach motors, will be condensed in tanks; part of it used to replenish water in the cooling systems of the motors and the rest stored as ballast.

As ballast, the exhaust water will more than make up for the loss in weight the dirigible will suffer when fuel is consumed enroute so that instead of letting out expensive hydrogen from the gas bag either before landing or when forced into high altitudes, water can be discharged from the tanks. The use of carburetted hydrogen will cut down by 25 per cent the initial useful load carried by the dirigible.

STATE BODY HITS FLEET INSURANCE IN NEW DECISION

Commissioner Rules Against Group Protection in Auto Liability

Madison—(P)—Granting of a "fleet" liability insurance rate consisting of car is insured, is a violation of the a lower rate per automobile when one anti-discrimination law, Olaf H. Johnson, state insurance commissioner announced here.

Automobile insurance companies and agents have been directed to discontinue the writing of such policies. Mr. Johnson said, in accordance with an opinion by Assistant Attorney General Mortimer Levitan.

The opinion says in part:

"It is now the practice of some of the liability insurance companies to issue automobile liability policies at what is termed a 'fleet' rate to owners operating a large number of automobiles or trucks. Under this practice a lower rate or a lesser premium is charged per car than is charged to an insured who owns only one car.

"The statutes relating to discrimination in rates or premiums for insurance originally only applied to life insurance, and this was then extended to fire insurance and later to liability and workmen's compensation.

"An examination of the different statutes prohibiting discrimination in insurance rates or premiums clearly indicates an intention on the part of the legislature to give no recognition to the quantities or the amount of the insurance in the making of the rates or the premium. It follows therefore that if any difference is to be made in the rate or premium where several automobiles are insured for the same owner from the rate given where only one automobile is insured for one owner the distinction must be made on the basis of some fact other than the number of cars so insured for the same owner.

"I am therefore of the opinion that the practice you describe is in violation of the anti-discrimination statutes, and cannot be permitted in this state."

148 Widows Also Receiving Aid, Reports to County Board Indicate

According to reports submitted to the county board of supervisors Wednesday there 32 blind persons, 148 widows and 66 aged men and women receiving financial aid from the public coffers.

Distribution of funds is general throughout the county, the reports indicated.

Exact amounts paid and the proportionate share assumed by the towns, cities and villages, will be brought out at later board meetings when more detailed reports are available, it was stated.

Whether or not the names of widows receiving aid from the county should be published in the annual report of the county board was broached on the floor by John Tracy, Appleton.

The suggestion of Mr. Tracy that the names be withheld from the booklet was not met favorably but no official action followed. The sense of the board seemed to be that the assistance allowed is a matter of public record and that interested persons should find statistics easily available.

HOME'S BEST SAVE FOR LEGISLATORS AFTER ELECTIONS

Solons Make for Washington as Soon as Reelection Is Assured

Washington—With election out of the way, Washington will be filling up with national legislators pretty fast. It always does right after every election.

Congress doesn't meet for nearly a month after any election date—it's a little more than a month this year—but there always is considerable preliminary work to be done.

Besides, a great many congressmen are very much infatuated with Washington.

Perhaps it isn't surprising that a man from some jerkwater little town in the sticks should prefer the capital. Perish the thought that he should admit it to the home folks, but it's noteworthy that he makes for here the minute he's sure he's safely re-elected.

According to early arrivals it's been an unusually grueling campaign for an off presidential year, except in parts of the country which always go the same way, regardless of issues or candidates or anything else.

The individuals who have been doing the spellbinding are pretty well forged out. Never were there so many states and congressional districts which classed as doubtful up to the last minute. Seldom in recent times has so much mud been slung. That's what the returning politicians say.

Secretary Mellon was the only cabinet member not drafted into the service by the Republican speakers' committee.

Several others weren't at all keen about taking the stump, saying they were too busy here, but the committee dragged them all onto it as election day drew near—all who hadn't been there from the very beginning of the fight.

Mellon wasn't very strongly urged. An old man and unaccustomed to it, he can't stand the wear and tear of personal contact with the electorate. He hasn't recovered yet from the agony he suffered during his attempt to make the only speech of his life during the Pennsylvania Republican primaries. At an orator, politicians don't consider him much of an asset, anyway.

Secretary of War Davis is understood to have had the most strenuous time of any member of President Coolidge's official family.

He wasn't reluctant. Politics is Davis' meat. He's a good spellbinder. He was on the job early and late. Missouri's his home state and it was doubtful. Politically speaking, it was a regular knockdown-and-dragout, and Davis was in it from start to finish.

An affair between men like Secretary Davis, Senator Jim Reed and Harry Hawes is a heavyweight encounter, which is exactly what this was, from all accounts.

As soon as the tired campaigners have had time to rest up, plans will begin to shape themselves for Congress. Committee meetings already are beginning to be called.

Lame ducks are being counted. Other political places must be conjured up for those who have earned their rewards. If they can't be elected to Congress they must be appointed to something else.

The election debris is being swept up and the politicians are anxious to see that a good job is made of it. That's why they're flocking into Washington again.

LAWRENCE HOMECOMING

Hundreds of former Lawrence college students will return to Appleton Saturday to take part in the annual homecoming festivities at the college. Graduates and former students come from all parts of Wisconsin and from other north central states in the hopes of meeting some of their former classmates and to renew their acquaintanceships with the college and with its professors. Homecoming means a great deal to these former students—it is the tie that binds them to their college days.

Homecoming is important also to the college for it gives its graduates an opportunity to learn for themselves that their Alma Mater is still worthy of support. The college puts on its best bit and tucks during these days for it must not lose this opportunity to show its importance. Lawrence, like nearly all institutions of its type, must depend quite largely upon its alumni for support and there is no better time to show that it is worthy of help than at homecoming.

But homecoming at Lawrence should not be a purely collegiate gesture. It is as important to the city as to the college and should be as much of a civic holiday as a college holiday. Much that Appleton has it owes to the college and it should strive to prove to the visitors that Lawrence is worthy of help and that Appleton is proud that Lawrence is here. Homecoming should be a time for civic justification, for making former students here feel that they were missed when they left and that they are thrice welcome to return.

Appleton it seems has been a bit lagging in its cooperation with the college in preparing for homecoming. It has lost an opportunity to let the college and its graduates know that the college is an appreciated asset and that the city rejoices with the college in the return of its former students. It is not entirely too late yet to show some measure of cooperation. This can be done in various ways, by displaying the colors of the school, by helping the visitors feel at home and by aiding the visitors and the college to enjoy the return to Alma Mater.

The football game with Carroll college Saturday is only an incident in the homecoming program. It provides entertainment for the visitors, and is the opportunity for giving vent to pent up enthusiasm. But homecoming means more than merely attending a football game. It means a renewal of friendships, a renewal of youth and every man owes it to himself to do this at least once every year.

ARMISTICE DAY

Nearly a decade has passed since the termination of the World War. This is the eighth anniversary of the Armistice. The time has passed swiftly because the world has been occupied with great events and great problems. Armistice Day carries a double significance. It is an occasion for honoring that great body of loyal Americans who went to fight for their country and democracy, including particularly those who gave their lives, and to renew to them as a nation our gratitude. It is also an occasion of rejoicing, because of the successful termination of a war that meant so much to free institutions and the future peace of the world.

In addition to the silent tribute which will be paid our war veterans on this day, we do not think it could be better observed than by reflecting upon the origin and history of this republic. The why and the wherefore of the United States of America are recorded in the Declaration of Independence, the Revolution, the Constitution, the Civil War and our participation in the World War. These are the milestones by which we measure our status, our greatness, our blessings and our future. To the extent that they lead us to deeper self-analysis and spiritual introspection, the more potent they will be for the preservation of a sound nationalism and the solution of our social and political problems.

Armistice Day should cause us to pause and cast a look back over the path we have traveled, and forward over the route we are now pursuing. It should serve to ground us more firmly in the purposes upon which this nation was conceived, organized and developed, and from which a departure would be fatal. If we do this, unreasoned pacifism and fears of militarism quickly find their proper place, and we take a more substantial and courageous estimate of our duties as citizens.

ITALY NEARING CRISIS

Fascism is involved in a life and death struggle for its preservation in Italy. Mussolini is adopting a policy of reprisal against its enemies which recognize both the strength of the opposition and the insecurity of his life and rule. By his direction parliament is engaged in the passing of additional police laws which provide deportation for political offenses similar to those existing in Russia before the war. For minor offenses the victims are to be herded in localities within continental Italy, where they may live in relative freedom, but which they must not leave, while more serious accusations are to result in the offender's exile to one of Italy's island penal colonies. These measures have been taken because of recent persistent attempts to assassinate the dictator. Their extreme nature shows that Mussolini is convinced that the plots against his life are not the isolated acts of individuals, but are the product of a widespread conspiracy to get him out of the way and overthrow fascism.

Events, therefore, would seem to be moving rapidly toward a crisis in the domestic affairs of Italy. A government which in self-defense is driven to the tyranny that arbitrarily classes every opponent as a traitor manifestly faces a precarious future. It is the last resort to block the determination of the anti-fascists to destroy the pillar on which the dictatorship rests. We doubt if it will be successful. The farther Mussolini goes in his reprisals against those who hate him and plot his death the nearer he brings himself to destruction. A government which has to depend upon such measures for its existence cannot last long.

Mussolini's death would probably be followed by chaos and possibly revolution. With all that has been done under the dictatorship to reconstruct, re-vitalize and re-nationalize Italy, and it is a great deal, the powers would probably prefer its overthrow to its continuance. Nevertheless, they are keeping their hands off and even France has proved herself guiltless of the charge that she has connived with anti-fascists. If carried to its logical end, fascism means an ultimate war for the control of the Mediterranean and to resist Mussolini's program for expansion, with its generally accepted ravishment of Turkey in the background.

British political leaders appear to support fascism on the theory that it alone guarantees the stability of Italy, and Sir Austen Chamberlain is said to have been captivated by Mussolini at their meeting, but all Europe does not share this view. The weaker nations are afraid of him and the powers are fearful of a minor war that may lead to a general outbreak. Without Mussolini fascism would undoubtedly lose much of its potency. It might even result in a restoration of constitutional government. However we may view the situation Italy undoubtedly is the danger spot of Europe today. The Russian menace has faded out of the picture.

STAYING OFF STALENESS

If you are quite well you have a quarter of a grain of uric acid in each pint of your precious blood, so take warning—I have no advice to give anybody for "uric acid trouble." Moreover even if the chemical test reveals that your blood contains more than the proper proportion of uric acid, that is not a significant thing, for an excess of uric acid is found in the blood in so many different disease conditions, such as pneumonia, leucemia, advanced nephritis, diabetes, cancer and gout, that we can attach no definite significance to such a finding, except that it means some deficiency in the metabolism, the oxidation process. Even when an excess of uric acid is found present in the blood, this does not mean that the patient has "acidosis" nor does it warrant the fancy that the patient's "system is too acid" or that there is "acidity" to be combated.

The disposal of uric acid or other waste matter resulting from incomplete combustion is a medical problem to be submitted to the judgment of the physician in each individual case. The prevention of this suboxidation is mainly a question of getting a reasonable amount of exercise every day, for exercise is the best way we know to increase oxidation, and the average daily dose of exercise required for this purpose is six miles of walking. There it is; take it or leave it, according to your valuation of good health. Other forms of exercise may be substituted for walking, but for most of us walking is far the best.

There are some other effective and practical means of increasing the absorption of oxygen into the blood and its utilization in metabolism to improve the combustion of fuel in the tissues. One of these is the practice of taking iodine.

Besides preventing simple goiter in children, a suitable iodine ration for adults tends to prevent staleness. On sober reflection I feel that it would be as well not to attempt to describe staleness—even the sketchiest description, I have found, intrigues too many people who happen to be suffering from ennui. However, it is a good health policy, in my judgment, for every one to make sure of his iodine ration. One drop of the ordinary brown tincture of iodine, taken in a glassful of water, once a week, the year around is a suitable iodine ration for child or adult. Or such a dose may be taken daily for month or two in the year. Or the daily drop may be taken for a period of month in each of the four seasons of the year. Such a ration of iodine, or in some cases perhaps a little more, improves metabolism, increases the oxidation process in the body, and in that way prevents staleness, premature senility, the willies and all that sort of thing.

Iodine, generally in the form of an iodid, has been recognized from early times, as a remedy for gout. In any case iodine activates the function of the thyroid and perhaps other ductless glands whose internal secretions control the rate of metabolism or the oxidation process in the body.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

It Takes Nerve

I feel so weak and gone at times, nervous and fearful, queer pains here and there, no ambition, poor appetite—will a nerve specialist be able to help me more than an ordinary doctor (one charges about $10 a visit and the other $2 which makes a difference when one must go frequently to the doctor—K. S.)

Answer—"The nerve specialist" is a thing of the past, an obsolete institution, a figure not found only in romantic novels. Of course no such "specialist" can do any more for you than any other doctor—any ordinary doctor. The difference of $8 may be charged off to (a) the nerve of the "specialist" and (b) the fondness of the unsophisticated individuals for ponderous names and imposing trimmings.

Castor Oil and Finger Cots

I am a typist and in cold weather my fingers crack and become very painful. Is there anything I can do to prevent this? (R. A.)

Answer—Apply a little castor oil to the fingers every morning. Do not wash it all away. Wear rubber thimbles or finger cots while typing. Be sure the oil is fresh.

Kindly tell us the food value of bananas. Is a large banana, eaten with vegetables two or three times daily, in addition to an otherwise varied diet, unwise or harmful? (G. E. N.)

Answer—A ripe banana, raw or cooked, compares favorably with a potato of the same weight. Banana is superior to potato in the amount of carbohydrate and in vitamin content. Banana gives 450 calories and potato only 355 calories to the pound.

HASKIN WRITES TODAY

ON—

PEACE BRIDGE OVER NIAGARA

By Frederic J. Haskin

Washington, D. C. Early next summer the new vehicular bridge now under construction across the Niagara River will be completed, if there is no upset in the plans of the engineers. Its formal opening will be made the occasion for a celebration at Buffalo, N. Y. and Fort Erie, Ontario which will commemorate a century and more of peace between the United States and Great Britain.

The nature of the celebration has not as yet been determined, but it is promised that it will be a notable affair in every respect, expressing appropriately the close and friendly relations that have existed so long between this country and Canada.

The bridge, which is known as the Vehicular Peace Bridge, ultimately will belong to the State of New York and the province of Ontario, or to the cities at its terminals, and is not purely a commercial proposition, as are the bridges at Niagara Falls, Lewiston, N. Y., and Montreal. Tolls will be collected on it at first, but as soon as it has paid for itself it will become a free bridge.

Representative citizens in Canada and the United States initiated the enterprise primarily from patriotic motives. They formed a stock company with a capital of $50,000 and then arranged for a bond issue of $450,000. Next they secured the necessary authorization from the Dominion of Canada, our Federal Government, and the State of New York. Their charter contains the provision that the stock and bond issues are to be retired from the collected tolls as quickly as possible, and that after their retirement the bridge shall become the property of the Dominion and the State of New York, or such municipalities or agencies as they may designate.

Twenty-five directors, nine of whom are Canadians and sixteen are citizens of the United States, control the company that owns the franchise of the Buffalo & Fort Erie Bridge. They hold the entire issue of $50,000 of capital stock, which is not transferable. The bond issue will suffice to cover the cost of the bridge.

Ground was broken for the construction of this bridge a year ago last August at Fort Erie and the work has been pushed at a high speed in order that the structure might be completed by next spring.

At this end the terminals of the bridge are on land once occupied by the buildings of Fort Porter in Buffalo. The army post which has occupied these premises for more than a hundred years was abandoned this summer and the city of Buffalo purchased the property from the Federal Government, later transferring a part of it to the bridge corporation.

On the Canadian side, the terminals will be on the ground over which the last battle along the Niagara frontier between the British and the Americans in the War of 1812 was fought, the battle of Fort Erie.

The bridge crosses the Niagara River practically at the point where the river leaves Lake Erie flows to the north. The current is comparatively swift there, having a velocity of about seven and a half miles an hour which makes it impracticable for any of the larger steamships to navigate against the stream, and the Federal Government has, accordingly, enlarged the Erie Canal on the American side so that it takes vessels with a draft of 21 feet.

Over the canal the new bridge will have a clearance of 100 feet, which will suffice for the highest masted vessels on the Great Lakes. The grade across the canal is level for a distance of 360 feet with grades descending to the terminals on either side, the maximum not exceeding four per cent.

Engineers state that no pure type of bridge could be designed to meet all the physical conditions, hence the Peace Bridge is somewhat of a hybrid. The approaches on either side are of girder construction, with a 360-foot truss span over the canal, and the river proper, 1300 feet in width, is spanned by five steel arches, diminishing in length from the American to the Canadian side as the grade descends, in order to give the proper proportion and perhaps to the bridge.

In construction the bridge is as modern as it can be made. The foundations of all piers and abutments rest on solid rock, which is relatively close to the surface, and the entire superstructure is of steel. The driveway will be of granite blocks and the sidewalks and balustrades of concrete. The roadway will be 36 feet from curb to curb, and there will be six-foot sidewalks on each side for pedestrians.

MILLIONS TO CROSS ANNUALLY

Engineers say that at this time it is impossible to estimate the amount of traffic the Peace Bridge will carry a few years from now, because the possibilities of development of traffic to and from Canada are so great that prophecy becomes hazardous. However, they say that during the first year it should serve 1,500,000 vehicles, practically all of which will be automobile and trucks, and 5,000,000 people.

In all the 1200 miles of river and lake from the site of this bridge—a bit of the Niagara, Lake Erie, the Detroit River, St. Clair Lake, St. Clair River, Lake Huron, St. Mary's River, and Lake Superior to the city of Duluth there is not a single Chicago bridge. In fact, from Duluth to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, a matter of fully 2000 miles, there are but four vehicular bridges across the waters of the Great Lakes system two at Niagara Falls, one at Lewiston, and one at Montreal. The Peace Bridge will be the fifth.

Eastern Canada, almost from Fort Erie down to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, is regarded as a summer playground of unusual attractions and historic interest that Americans are just beginning to appreciate. Buffalo, with the new bridge, will be the gateway, and it is expected that the traffic will grow heavier every day after it is opened, save of course in the winter.

Also Canada has a wonderful boulevard from Fort Erie to Niagara Falls, Ontario, terminating in beautiful Victoria Park, which will be a big, drawing card for Americans, and the Canadian shore from Fort Erie to the west along the shores of Lake Erie is a popular site for summer homes of Buffalo people. The new bridge will make it even more popular by reason of making it more accessible.

In planning the Bridge the engineers and the promoters were from the outset insistent upon having adequate terminals at either end. They agreed that it was not the congestion of traffic on the bridge that they had to fear so much as the lack of facilities for handling incoming and outgoing vehicles, and it is said that they have arranged for approaches far ahead of those of any similar bridge in the country.

Four o'clock in the morning on the by-paths of Manhattan. . .

It never occurs to a Broadwayite that dance and music and gaiety may go on elsewhere throughout the night. . . From a Sixth Avenue Greek coffee house comes a primitive dance tune, to the rhythmic accompaniment of a tambourine. . . The time is played over and over again in pleasant monotony. . . Through the window the faint sound of feet thudding on a floor two stories above. . . It is this way most every night. . . And on Saturdays until daylight. . .

The little sandwich shops of the side streets are quite alive. . . The crowds are poorly dressed. . . Why are they about at this hour. . . And along East Avenue loungers lean over the railing, black silhouettes watching the workers in the caverns below although the wind is barbed with ice and penetrant dampness. . . Surely Manhattan contains within its lean boundaries a great city of night-hawks. . .

HOW TO BURN SOFT COAL

Editor Post-Crescent—Here is an idea I think is worthy of mention. So I am going to pass it along. Many of us have found hard coal rather expensive. And have started to burn Pocahontas coal. I find it to be an economical coal to use. And throws out a good heat. The idea I wish to pass along is this: All soft coal has a certain amount of fine stuff in it, caused by handling.

And if you shovel the coal into your furnace as it comes to you from the bin you get a lot of fine stuff on your shovel, which will dampen your fire at a time when you may want it to burn lively and heat your house in a hurry. Here is where I have found a potato hook to come in useful. With it I draw the coal "wards" me. The hook will bring only the large pieces and leave the dust and fine stuff back. Shovel the fine stuff to one side to be used to dampen your fire when you retire for the night, but sprinkle it with a little water in the morning and stir it up. It should not be put on the fire dry or too wet. I find about 3 shovels full of fine stuff sufficient to dampen my fire for the night give it enough air across the top of the fire to carry off the gases.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

This Tells Where Grasshopper Goes In Winter

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n.

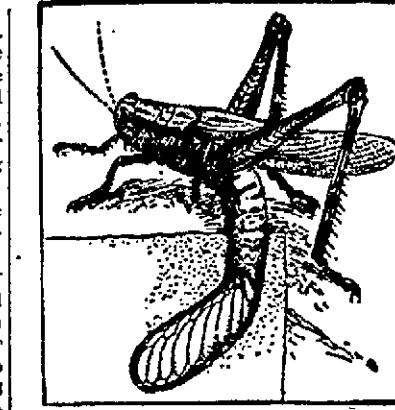

In the fable the ant reviles the grasshopper because he passes the summer in fiddling, when he should be gathering provisions for the winter. When the winter came the poor musician is represented as repenting of this improvidence, and begging the wise and provident ant for a little provision to keep him from starving.

We fear, however, that this story was written before people had learned much of the myriad ways in which old Mother Nature takes care of her children. Some indeed must lay up stores to live, others may sleep, and to many she has given the power to glean from the earth their food all year round.

Some she gives to understand that try as they may, they cannot live beyond the warm season, and these she bids sing, but changes them that, ere the summer is gone, they must make sure their offspring will next year carry on the race.

To this latter class belong the grasshoppers. A few may survive the winter in the adult state, and sometimes the young hatch in the autumn, and hidden beneath the grass roots, emerge in spring as short-legged, awkward creatures rather unlike their parents.

Most of the old ones, however, die after depositing their eggs and leave the continuance of the race dependent on the successful wintering and hatching of the eggs. Unlike most insects, the young do not undergo any radical transformations, but hatch in a form resembling their parents.

HOLE FOR THE EGGS
The mother grasshopper digs a hole for her eggs, the ovipositor itself doing duty as a digging tool, and lays in the pit a great number of longish eggs. Long after she has died the tiny grasshoppers hatch out, and are able to care for themselves from start.

The grasshopper might have resorted by pulling the ant that he did not have to provide for the winter.

COMMITTEE WILL HEAR REPORTS ON COMMUNITY CHEST

Community Welfare Committee of Chamber of Commerce to Meet Friday

A further study of the information at hand on the community chest will be made by the community welfare committee of the chamber of commerce at 7:15 Friday evening, Nov. 12, at the chamber office. Notices of the meeting were issued Wednesday by T. E. Orison, chairman.

Establishment of a community chest system in Appleton to finance welfare and similar organizations has been under consideration here for several years. The community chest would, it is pointed out, do away with the numerous financial campaigns conducted annually by these organizations and would also save much time for the solicitors and solicited.

In cities where this plan has been adopted, only one campaign is conducted annually, and the organizations included in the system receive their share of the money raised at the close of the campaign.

STARTED IN 1921
The first definite action on the matter was taken Dec. 6, 1921, when at least 30 persons attended a meeting at the chamber of commerce offices to discuss the proposal. Mrs. George R. Wettengel was appointed chairman of a special committee at that time to secure information on the community chest.

Considerable data on the subject was secured, and a number of meetings called later on, but no definite action ever resulted from any of them. More than enough information is now on file at the chamber offices to give anyone so desiring a comprehensive idea of the system, according to Hugh G. Corbett, general secretary, Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

The community welfare committee appointed F. M. Belanger chairman of the sub-committee on the community fund last July. A report of this committee will be made Friday evening.

That much time and effort would be saved many citizens by the adoption of a community fund plan is the opinion of Mayor Albert C. Rule.

"A community chest would eliminate all financial campaigns except one every year," he said. "The plan is being followed in many cities and in the great majority of cases it has proved a success."

Reports from sub-committees on golf, garbage, schools, improved parks and supervised play also will be presented Friday.

ONE MAIL DELIVERY ON CHRISTMAS THIS YEAR

Because Christmas falls on Saturday this year and because the government officials have decided that the public must not be inconvenienced by having no mail delivery from Friday evening to Monday morning, city and village carriers will make one complete delivery of mail on Saturday morning, Dec. 25, according to word received at the Appleton postoffice Wednesday.

During the past three years the government has waged an intensive "Mail Early" campaign and as a result the first year, Christmas was declared a half holiday, for the postal employees, the second year work was suspended at 11 o'clock in the morning and the last year they had the entire day free. The fact that carriers and clerks are forced to work until noon this year does not mean that the full holiday on Christmas has been abandoned. It is only because conditions this year make a delivery necessary. There will be no rural delivery.

SEEK AID TO REPAIR HIGHWAYS 55 AND 15

Through its council, the city of Kaukauna, on Wednesday presented resolutions to the board seeking appropriations to repair highways 55 and 15. In the first resolution money appropriated would be used to connect with 15 on the south side at Kaukauna where a short stretch is not paved at the railroad tracks and in the second funds are sought for reconditioning with concrete the highway at McCarthy's crossing.

"I had indigestion so bad that my hands and arms turned yellow, and it had not been for Adlerika. I think I should have died. There is nothing better for indigestion."—Mrs. Mary Hannafor.

Adlerika gives the system a REAL cleansing and brings out old poisons which may have caused trouble for a long time. Unlike most medicines, it acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never thought was in your system and which caused sour, rassy stomach, nervousness, headache. TALK COUNTY FINANCES AT PUBLIC MEETING

Setting a precedent in tax solution attempts the Outagamie-co. committee on finance announces that an open meeting will be held at Stevensville on Thursday evening when taxpayers will be asked to make suggestions on how the taxes in the county could be reduced.

The gathering will be held in the Stevensville auditorium and any interested person is invited to attend.

Informality will be the keynote of the attempt and it is hoped that pertinent suggestions will be forthcoming, a member of the committee said Wednesday.

It is probable that other such convales will be called in other sections of the county during the county board sessions, it was stated.

ARNEKE TO PLAY AT VESPER SERVICE

Weekly Services Will Be Conducted at First Methodist Church for 22 Weeks

Arthur H. Arneke of Milwaukee, professor of organ at Lawrence Conservatory of music, will play at the vesper services at First Methodist church Sunday afternoon, Nov. 21, according to Miss Esther Miller, secretary. These services are to be conducted weekly for a period of 22 weeks and will end with the Lenten services on Easter Sunday.

The public is invited to attend the meetings which are highly devotional. They will consist of regular services with a short meditative devotion by Dr. J. A. Holmes, pastor, music by some noted artist, music by the Methodist vested choir under direction of Carl McKee and community singing. Mrs. Eileen Buckley Lazar, contralto soloist, will sing at the first vesper service next Sunday afternoon.

The Carroll college glee club will sing at one of the vesper services in the near future. Others who will appear at these services are Doris Mason, contralto soloist and Helen Lewis Westphal, soprano soloist of Chicago.

est benevolent groups of the county.

Preliminary bulletins will be run off on the school presses and distributed and later results of the drive will be published in the school papers. A committee composed of representatives from each school is working on the plans.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Pains or Bladder Is Irritated

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. adv.

PREVENT WASTE
Cereals spoil very easily so it is advisable to keep only a small supply on hand and replenish often.

KEEPING LETTUCE
Lettuce and asparagus can be kept fresh by standing the root ends in pan of cold water.

DON'T OVER-COOK
Vegetables should be cooked until tender, but no longer. Over cooking makes them strong-flavored and indigestible.

CARE OF LINOLEUM
To keep your linoleum in perfect shape, wipe it once a week with a cloth wet with one part turpentine or kerosene and one part boiled linseed oil.

Lines of New Gowns Do Not Conceal Figure

BY HENRI BENDEL
THE return to nature is nowhere more evident in the new fashions than in the fitted and draped gowns of brocade and velvet whose first design is to reveal all the curves and sensuous lines of the uncorseted body.

Waistlines have risen to their natural position, hips are closely swathed, skirts either wholly, or partially circular display the lines of the thighs with every motion.

The revolt against flat boardlike figures, straightline frocks, has progressed so far that many of the most striking Paris models this fall resemble a drape of a single length of rich material, wound about the body again and again to emphasize rather than conceal its contours.

NEEDS LITTLE TRIMMING

The lovely chiffon velvets that appeared on the textile market this fall are highest in favor for the new draped gowns. I have imported and made more velvet gowns this season than I ever before handled in a single fabric in a single season.

I like materials that supply their own trimming. Velvet is one of these. Its rich texture and soft sheen would be desecrated by a surplus of trimming. He who heavily trims a velvet gown paints the lily, indeed.

As an example of judicious trimming of velvet, I am illustrating in the accompanying picture an evening frock from Callot. Its rich black velvet is embroidered in a single motif of rose and gold, and the hem and armholes are faced with violet satin. The embroidery motif forms a panel that drops in a graceful nook below the hemline. The same design is carried around the skirt with a single row in front and three rows in back.

Not only does the point break the hemline, but the skirt itself runs upward on the back, to a height of three inches above the front hemline.

Thus the vogue for uneven hems is satisfied. Scarcely a single evening gown of this season has an even skirt line.

Brocades call for even less trimming than velvets for their own pattern supplies all the adornment needed. A brocade frock requires subtle design and careful execution, for its simplicity will call attention to faults, if there be any.

NEW DIGNITY OF LINE

In the gown illustrated, great care was needed, to make the large motifs in the pattern fall in proper places, so that bodice and skirt are correlated.

The material is a soft brocade shaded from turquoise to deep violet.

To emphasize the high note, the shoulder drapes are lined with turquoise panne velvet, which forms the only trimming.

The bodice is draped in a slight front blouse—such extends into a sash tied in back. The neckline is bateau and the armholes are closely fitted about the bare arm.

I consider this frock an excellent demonstration of the dignity and rare line that a gown may achieve, in spite of the short skirt. The shoulder drapes and the sash tied in back supply the formal note so necessary in gowns for state occasions.

LEFT IS A GOWN OF SOFT BROCADE SHADED FROM TURQUOISE TO DEEP VIOLET. THE ONE IN BLACK VELVET IS EMBROIDERED IN A SINGLE MOTIF OF ROSE AND GOLD.

THE COIN OF CHARACTER?

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The indiscriminate bee gathers golden dew out of the heart of you?

We might learn what character means from the bee—not only from his industry but from his happy philosophy and his providence.

The other day a little girl asked me what character meant. She said she had heard so much about character and she never knew what people were talking about. She seemed to have a vague idea that it meant reputation.

I told her she was right, partly—but that it was when one was without character that one had a reputation usually. And I explained the difference between character and "a character."

Now all the fathers and mothers and grandpas and grandmas may run along and play bridge if they are going to yawn themselves to death. But if any old person of ten or twelve happens to see these lines and is as interested as the young lady who asked me what "character" meant I'll explain it in a few words as I know how.

Character is the bravery in us. It is the thing that makes us stand up to disappointment, hardship, fatigue, worry and work without complaining. It is the thing that can make us go on day after day carrying a burden cheerfully, without applause on our part, or others, and complaint on our part.

Character is the gentleness in us, that shows how many or how womanly we can be. It is gentleness and kindness and mercy and consideration of others, that make the real gentleman or the real lady.

Character is the pluck in us that rebuffs when we have been floored by trouble. It is the thing that says, "Go ahead and try again and never give up."

Character is the courage in us that says "no" when we should, and "yes" when we should, and, like the bee, the ability to find food in everything. We should know what we are worth in the coin of character.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

By four o'clock that Saturday, Faith realized the thoroughness with which Joy had played town crier. Neighbors for blocks up and down Myrtle street—neighbors who had long since grown weary of Mrs. Lane's recital of her symptoms and ailments and had ceased to call—came singly and in groups of two and three ostensibly to pay a neighborly visit, but in reality to confirm the amazing report that the Myrtle street flapper beauty was engaged to be married to a rich old man, nearly four times her age.

The austere Miss Peabody, principal of Joy's school, had been but the vanguard of the curious. Old Mrs. Talbot, who lived next door on the left, and who had been nursing a grudge against Mrs. Lane for more than two years, arrived first, rustling and amiable in the black silk she reserved for weddings, funerals and church services.

"How's your Ma, Faith?" I declare time does fly! I've been tryin' to get over for a month o' Sundays, but something always comes up to keep me home. I brought her a jar o' my new peachblit that I put up Wednesday. I always think of your Ma when I put up peachblit. Poor thing. She taught me how to make it, but I guess she won't put up any more herself."

Mrs. Ashbell and Mrs. Purdy arrived before Mrs. Talbot had finished her greetings. Faith accepted their gifts of grape jelly and blueberry jam for the invalid with embarrassed thanks, then hurried away to tell her mother the astonishing news. It seemed a shame to arouse her from her deep afternoon sleep.

"You've been sitting at school and all up and down Myrtle street," Faith whispered breathlessly, as her mother stared at her in bewilderment. "How in the world am I going to get all my Sunday work done? Do you feel like tackling them, Mother? They're all swelled up with curiosities."

Well, Cherry, I been raised on Myrtle street, and I don't see nothin' out of the way in our old neighbors takin' an interest in her bein' engaged to get married. Are they all thinged up? Mr. Lane? I ain't got a thing to wear. I guess I'll put on that blue dotted foulard. Just hand me my new shoes, Faith. They pinch my feet something terrible, but—oh, Lord! There's a runner in the only decent pair of blue silk stockings I got to my name. Just catch it up for me, Faith. There's a new pair of black silk thurt' stuck in the end of that dresser shelf."

Ten minutes later, when Mrs. Lane, puffing from her exertions but her broad red face alacred with pleasure and welcome, waddled her slow way into the living room, she found five neighbors instead of three. Mrs. Tans and Mrs. Silvers having arrived while Faith was assisting her mother to dress.

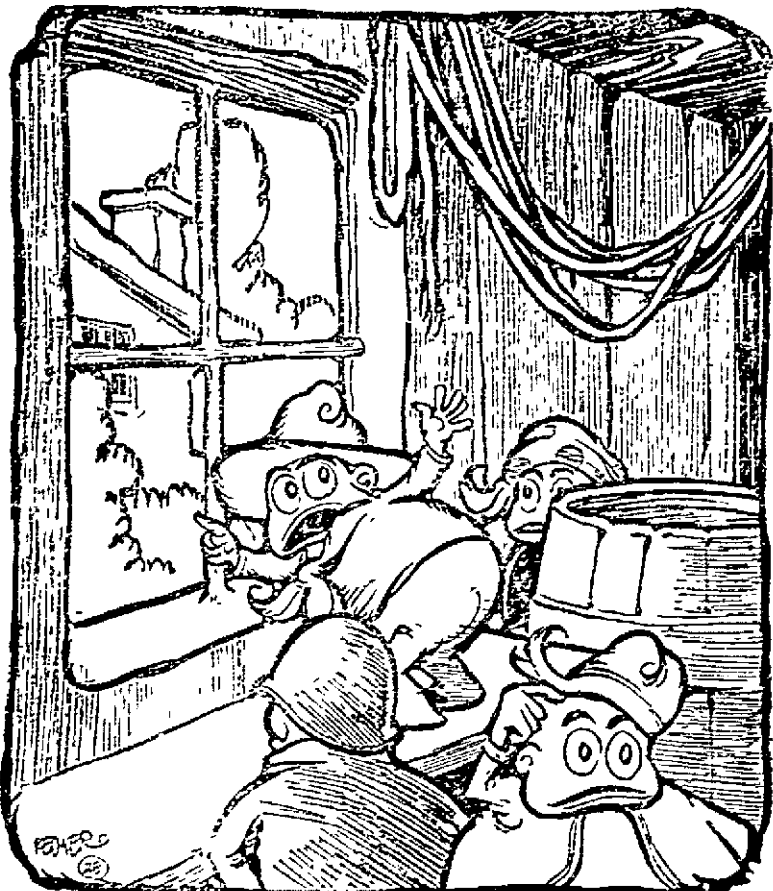

"Just thought we'd drop in and see how you are, Martha," Mrs. Ashbell spoke for herself and Mrs. Purdy. "I'd been figgerin' up and I thought this must be your last day on Myrtle street. I'll be sure to come to see you when you first moved to Myrtle street. I'll be sure to come to see you—no, eleven years ago! Long, but time does fly."

"My birthday can't be the first of November, but I must be, you came pretty close today," Mrs. Lane was deeply gratified. "And how Faith thought all you girls I'd come to see about Cherry. Eleven years! I don't seem possible, we been married that long. But I guess so. We bought this house in the fall of '10, and here it is. 1926. My Cherry was just a baby, about as old as Joy is now. And now she's got to nineteen and all grown up—on her own estimation, and thinkin' about gettin' married."

"Married," Mrs. Purdy exclaimed with an admirable affection of surprise. Well, I can't hardly say as I'm surprised. The bells of Myrtle street, that's what we call it. And is one way to get it off your chest.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

SAID Clowdy, "I'm a clever fox, for hiding in this old tool box." Of course he didn't know that there was trouble close at hand. The farmer walked right in the shed, while every Tiny ducked his head. Now what was going to happen? Well, they couldn't understand.

"Let's see," they heard the farmer say. "I've got to do some work today. The coal bin in my cellar needs repairing pretty bad. I'll hurry, 'cause when it's begun, it won't be long 'til it's done." Then Clowdy got a thrilling scare, the worst he'd ever had.

The tool chest seemed to rise in air. He didn't move. He didn't dare. He simply knew that he was being carried from the shed. "Course Clowdy often had been taught that some day he would sure be caught. He wished that he had minded what the Tinymites had said.

In just about two minutes more, the band heard footsteps on the floor.

voice trembled, as if she sensed for the first time the enormity of the thing to which she had given her consent. The eyes of seven women betrayed their scorn of her, the unholy gleam which they tasted the delicious thought of the popular and beautiful girl, who had scorned Myrtle street, looked to degrading old age.

The shrilling of the Tinymites took Faith away from the painful contemplation of her mother's bewilderment. "It's for you, Mother," she returned in a few moments. "Some woman insists on speaking to you. She wouldn't give me the message."

When Mrs. Lane left, the women drew together in a tight, oval circle and in the center of the circle the reputation of Cherry Lane was tossed and bandied and snatched at and torn, until it burst like an over-inflated, glittering toy balloon.

TODAY, Cherry, dismayed by Faith's news that announcement of her engagement is to be made in Sunday papers, begs for one more fling with Bob Hathaway.

Graduate Of Lawrence to Sing In City

Miss Lucille Meusel, coloratura soprano, will sing at Lawrence Memorial chapel Monday evening, Nov. 22, under auspices of the Appleton Womens club. The singer was graduated from Lawrence conservatory and took a post-graduate course in 1922 and 1923. For the past two years she has studied with Herbert Witherspoon, first in New York and then at the Chicago Musical college.

First honors were awarded the Green Bay girl in the Witherspoon Voice contest held at Central theatre, Chicago, in the spring of 1923. The prize was a scholarship which entitled Miss Meusel to two lessons a week from the teacher during the summer when he was a guest teacher at the Chicago Musical college.

Miss Meusel sang the mad scene from "Lucia" in the contest, and was chosen first of the 75 candidates who entered. At the end of the summer she went to New York with Mr. Witherspoon, and when he was engaged to teach at the Chicago Musical college a year later, she returned to continue her studies with him.

First place in a contest conducted by the Chicago Symphony orchestra in May 1926, also was awarded to Miss Meusel. Judges of the event included Harry Hadley, director of the orchestra; Leopold Auer, famous instructor of Helffitz and Mischa Elman; and George Ferguson. The prize in this contest was a grand piano and the privilege of appearing as soloist with the orchestra at Orchestra hall, Chicago, the following month. Miss Meusel was the only pupil of Witherspoon entered.

Home-made Supply of Fine Cough Syrup Better than ready-made cough syrups, and serves about 32. Easily prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known ready-made cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this home-made syrup, easily prepared in a few minutes. Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it in a quart bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup, or clarified honey, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the throat tickle and heals the irritated membranes so promptly and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and it is splendid for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiaicol, which has been used for generations to break severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., St. Wapato, Ind.

SHOULD HUSBANDS DO HOUSE WORK?

How Mrs. Dyer Solved the Problem.

Mrs. Mildred Dyer was lucky. She had a good-natured husband who helped her with much of her housework. Because she was in ill health for five years, it was often necessary for him to do this. But it bothered Mrs. Dyer. She felt that he had to work hard enough anyway. The time he spent in doing her work was needed for his own. She determined to find the road to better health.

She writes: "I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is simply wonderful. My health is better than it has ever been. I am getting stronger and gaining in weight." The Dyers live at Redlands, Calif., Route A, Box 183. How often does your husband have to do your housework? No matter how willing he is, no woman feels comfortable about it. Perhaps you, too, will find better health through the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"SO'S YOUR OLD MAN"

After years of portraying neglected wives, sedate ladies and dignified mothers, beautiful Alice Joyce is now romping into light comedy as Princess Leontine in W. C. Fields' latest Paramount picture, "So's Your Old Man," which comes to the Fischers Appleton Theatre Friday and Saturday of this week.

"A picture actress is usually identified with one type of part," she recently remarked. "If you begin playing vamps, you're quite likely to continue in hip-swinging roles. Directors get the idea that the public won't accept you any other way."

"I started by doing neglected wives. That was with Vitagraph and my first role, if I remember rightly, was in 'The Strength of the Weak.' Then and there, I earned a reputation as being a forlorn female who found herself cast for these drab characters in picture after picture.

"One morning I reported at the studio in my most elaborate gown. I guess I didn't look like a neglected wife because, at the end of the day's work a director approached and asked if I'd like to appear as a wealthy lady of fashion in 'The Sporting Duchess.' Then I developed into a modern mother. I wore wigs in 'Mannequin' and 'Beau Geste' and continued to repress my emotions. I was allowed to smile in 'The Ace of Cads.' Perhaps this gave Director Gregory La Cava an idea that I might do well in comedy. He suggested my playing opposite Mr. Fields in 'So's Your Old Man.' 'So after all these years, I have at last arrived in the unrestrained sphere of bouncing screen farce. Of course, as a Princess, I still have to retain shreds of dignity, but no one can play with genial Mr. Fields and keep dignified for any length of time."

TAMING A CAVE MAN

When a flapper tries to tame a cave man she is more likely to find herself the tamed one, according to the latest Warner Bros. film, "The Cave Man," at the New Bijou three days starting today.

Matt Moore has undergone an astonishing metamorphosis for this production and makes his characterization of Snuggs, the coal heaver, stand out strongly after all that thin, faltering youths of his screen past. Moore is a grimy, husky, aggressive he-man in this film version of Gillette Burgess's story and does the best work of his career.

Mario Pervost, as ever, is a delight to watch, and is perfect as the pampered little beauty who goes in search of a thrill and finds more than she expected.

John Patrick, Myrna Loy, Phyllis

Haver and Hedda Hopper give consistently entertaining performances in a photoplay packed with humor, romance and drama; and "The Cave Man" is certain to please all picture-goers. Lewis Milestone directed.

DORIS KENYON HAS

FEATURED ROLE
The Elite Theatre feature for Friday, Saturday and Sunday will be "Mismates." Doris Kenyon's latest National vehicle, which Charles Brabin directed for an Earl Hudson unit in New York. "Mismates" is the screen version of Myron Fagan's stage play of the same title and has been filmed on a lavish scale.

Doris Kenyon and Warner Baxter have the featured roles. In the cast are Philo McCullough, Mae Allison, Charlie Murray, John Kolb, Cyndie Ring, Nancy Kelley, Maude Turner Gordon, Charles Beyer and many other well known screen players. One of the high lights of this picture is a jewel parade the like of which has never been shown before on the screen. A score of the most beautiful artist models in New York were secure for this scene, and the display of feminine pulchritude and dazzling jewels is one of the features of the picture.

CATLINMEN GET HARD WORKOUT FOR CARROLL STRUGGLE

Bluebacks Practice On New Offensive Tactics For Heavy Carrollites

Frosh, Seconds Use Orange's Pet Tricks in Scrimmage With Blue Varsity

Coach Mark Catlin's Lawrence college gridmen went through the first real workout of the week Wednesday afternoon in preparation for their big battle of the year, the homecoming and W-L conference title game with Carroll college here Saturday. Tuesday the key field made Catlin wary of injuries and only a light signal drill was held.

Reports Thursday morning from Wauchesa had the Pioneer favorites in the big tussle by a 4-1 margin because of the games played by the rival titlists with Ripon. The Orange is expected to take a fairly easy win, according to Carroll backers as well as its team members.

Coach Harry Sylvester scouted the Ripon-Carroll game and came back with an impressive tale of the Pioneer strength but said that the Blues could lick the present state champs if they showed a real fighting spirit. Sylvester turned over Carroll's pet tricks, as used in the last two games, to the frosh and second string squad and these were used in work against the varsity with fair success.

Meanwhile Catlin sent his varsity through the preliminary steps of the new offensive by which he hopes to surprise Carroll, said to the only offense by which the Blues may be able to beat the Orangemen. It is a new style for this year's Blues, all to learned in a week, so that Carroll scouts will be unable to send their squad onto the field ready to meet the Blue attack. In fact Catlin varied his attack for each game this year so that if the Orangemen are attempting defenses for Lawrence plays they will have to work against almost 100 plays of varied types, and then will see something new again Saturday.

Catlin's idea is that to beat Carroll the Bluebacks must outthink and outmaneuver the Orange. The Orange is going better each game and ranks with the best in the W-L at present. Behind him will be Barrell, Brees and Nason, all fighting backs. Nason's ankle is knitting rapidly and his ability to drop the pignose over the goalposts from anywhere within the 50-yard line will be needed Saturday. "In the line Hipke still is suffering from a bad knee, but the plucky New Holstein lad probably will be at the passing job when the whistle blows. Weinkauf and Steensland, who played a fine game against Deloit, appear to be the choice at guards, though Schauer, a first-year gridman is improving with every game and may get a chance to play Saturday. Art and Johnson also may get a chance to play Saturday. The latter may be worked some of the game at center if Hipke's knee still is sore. The tackle jobs are never in doubt with the old reliable pair of Capt. Counsell and Ott ripping up opposing lines. Jessup and Hillman will start at ends with Hilton and Bayer ready to get into the fray at the wings. Jessup will do the punting which may be an important part in this battle.

Pindle Loses Fourth Straight In Cue Meet

Philadelphia, Pa. (AP)—Erwin Rudolph of Chicago Thursday held undisputed lead in the tournament for the pocket billiard champion of the world. He swung into first position in the standing by defeating Charles Harmon, Glendale, Ill., Wednesday night 125 to 84. This gave the Chicago victor four victories and no defeats and broke a tie for the lead with Ralph Greenleaf, New York, who has won three games and lost none. "Harry Oswald, Pittsburg, suffered his first defeat of the tournament Wednesday at the hands of Arthur Ponzal, Philadelphia. "Charles Pindle, Appleton, continued in tenth place with none won and four lost. "Thursday's cards: "Woods vs Oswald; Ponzal vs Rudolph; Greenleaf vs Pindle and Taber vs Hueston.

MARQUETTE SQUAD IN INTERSECTION GAME WITH AUBURN

"Plainsmen" Classed as One of Strongest Teams in South This Fall

Milwaukee—Marquette university gridgers are now rounding into the home stretch of their 1926 schedule, and this week the Golden Avalanche boards the rattlers to play its first intersectional game of the season—a battle with Auburn at Birmingham, Ala., Saturday.

Auburn, also known as Alabama Poly has one of the strongest teams in Dixie this fall, as their recent victories over Tulane and Sewanee indicated. The "Plainsmen" are coached by Dave Morey, who put Middlebury college on the gridiron map and then went south to accept a better position at Auburn.

Although next Saturday's opponents call Auburn, Ala., their home, the game will be played in Birmingham, metropolis of the state, and will be the only intersectional game of the year for an Alabama team. Marquette has one other intersectional argument, however, being scheduled to face the Oregon Aggies in Milwaukee on Thanksgiving day.

This will be the first time that Marquette has invaded the southern states for a football game, although Mercer of Macon, Ga., came to Milwaukee last fall to take a 30 to 0 beating. There is little basis for comparison between the two teams on early date, but the dopesters expect it to be a close, hard fought game. Coach Frank J. Murray and probably 26 of his athletes will leave Milwaukee for Birmingham next Thursday noon. It will be the last trip of the year for the locals, who already have won from Lawrence, St. Louis university and Creighton on foreign missions.

Marquette meets North Dakota in Milwaukee, Nov. 20.

CARDINAL CAGERS STILL PRACTICING

Badgers Will Be Represented by Heavier Team This Year Than "Ponies"

Madison—That Wisconsin's basketball prospects will be in the best of physical condition when the season opens is the assurance offered by Dr. Walter E. Meannell, coach. Since the first part of October fourteen men have been meeting three times a week in the gymnasium for heavy workouts. The work thus far has consisted of passing, shooting and pivoting, in order that the men might be well accustomed to the ball. There have been no scrimmages and will be none until after the return of Captain Rollie Barnum and other men who are at present time on the football squad.

The team that will represent Wisconsin this year on the court will be much heavier than last year's "Ponies," according to Coach Meannell. The greater percentage of the squad out at present are sophomores, and include some of the biggest men that have played on a Badger team for years. Only five men of last year's squad have been out for practice this year. One of these, Ralph Merkle, Chicago, is a senior, and the remaining four are juniors. They are: Louis Behr, Rockford, Ill.; George Nelson, Madison; Eddie Powers, Fargo, South Dakota.

The nine sophomores out for the season are all members of last year's freshman squad, which was one of the best in the history of Wisconsin basketball. They are as follows: William Stotts, Appleton, Minn.; Joe Murphy, Chicago, Illinois; William Freitag, Milwaukee; John Doyle, Wauchesa, Illinois; Henry Kowalezyk, Rock, Wayne, Indiana; Elmer Tenhopen, Cleveland, Ohio; Ray Ellerman, Chicago; Cyril Koenig, Chicago, and Lylean Miller, LaCrosse.

YALE REGRETS BREAK
Newhaven, Conn. (AP)—The passing of the "Big Three" was a matter of deep regret Thursday at Yale. Many here view the breaking of the triple agreement "the best thing the three institutions have had for the upbuilding of sport" as a tragedy.

YALE REGRETS BREAK
While Princeton and Harvard have ended athletic relations three will be no immediate change in Yale's relations with either university. This is announced by George H. Wetton, chairman of the board of control of the Yale athletic association, who a month ago with the athletic directors of two other members of the "Big Three" signed an agreement which had been expected to preserve the triumvirate.

YALE REGRETS BREAK
Tom Lieb, has shown periodic defensive power throughout the season and during the last few days has been drilled to halt the Iowa Cowboy—Kutsch.

YALE REGRETS BREAK
About 42,600 fan, augmented by a host of Wisconsin football owners, will be in the stand at the kickoff, prepared to witness two evenly matched teams battle for better standing both in their local communities and in the national football championship.

Loud speakers will be installed so that all spectators will be informed as to the progress of the game, regardless of their unfamiliarity with the football gridgers. An electric clock will also tick off the minutes from the field.

A LESSON IN THE HULA

There's nothing like taking lessons from an expert. Here we see Gilda Gray, famous dancer, giving "Chuck" Everett, Drake University football star, a few pointers on her original dance of a rehearsal for the all-male musical comedy to be given by students at Drake. "Chuck" seems to be a very interested pupil, too.

TIGER WITHDRAWS FROM BIG THREE

Quarrel With Harvard and Harvard-Princeton Game Destroys Old Rivalry

Princeton, N. J. (AP)—One link of the Big Three chain, strained to cracking point by the fives of a Harvard humorous publication has finally smashed and carried away with it the most colorful and ancient rivalry of the American college sport world.

Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the board of athletic control at Princeton university, announces that all athletic relations with Harvard have been broken. Resolutions adopted by the board and sent to Harvard authorities say that "Princeton would never accept the implications of the athletic policy recently adopted by the Harvard committee on regulation of athletic sports set forth in their resolution of October 14."

The nature of the Harvard resolution was somewhat of a mystery when the break was announced Wednesday night. The resolution was received at Princeton only Wednesday. It was understood it provided for Harvard-Yale games every year and contests with others only "intermittently" but both Harvard and Princeton declined to say what the resolution declared.

Harvard planned to drop Princeton next year in football in order to play Michigan, but after a peace meeting at Yale last month it was announced that the two schools would continue. Then came the Harvard-Princeton game last Saturday. Harvard supporters booed Princeton when Harvard players were hurt by hard tackles.

Princeton rosters had a fight with Boston policemen in the Harvard stadium. The police failed to prevent the goal posts being torn down in Princeton's celebration of its victory, and what was most serious, the Harvard-Lampoon, sold to the football throngs, had tart lines at Princeton, for which the Lampoon later apologized.

MICHIGAN PUTS FAITH IN ITS LINE

Aerial Attacks in Ohio-Yost-Man Battle Depends on Line Work

Chicago (AP)—Michigan's line rather than Michigan's brilliant backfield was burdened by the critics Thursday with a major share of responsibility in Saturday's encounter with Ohio State which merits designation as the 1926 version of the annual "crucial battle" in the Western Conference.

The attention which has focused on the aerial game of the two elevens has shifted on the eve of their meeting, to line of scrimmage, with a general agreement that the result will be determined there.

Both teams are groomed to a fine edge on air offense and a fast running game, each with clever backfield combinations and the coaches Thursday covered their interest in counter strategy designed to cripple passing play by line work. The linemen among the 34 players ordered to the train by Yost averaged some six pounds more than the Ohio forwards, and twice labored at Columbus to offset the odds.

At Iowa, Ingwersen marshalled a team battered by Minnesota's crushing attack last week for the trip to Wisconsin where the Badgers permitted themselves a glimmer of confidence. With only a trip across town to reach the Chicago field before him, Thistlewaite used the day to good advantage and pushed the drive of Northwestern's backfield. Some of the gloom at Chicago was dispelled by the return of injured men.

Pat Hagle disregarded the weather to hustle the Indiana game with which he hopes to turn back Mississippi A. Then came the Ohio game, a double fortune, so far poor. Purdue, Illinois and Minnesota drifted through final sessions for their respective non-conference foes, Franklin, Wabash and Butler.

Rockne cast about in his Notre Dame legion and selected a squad of 35 to entrain for New York and the Army game. The absence of Art Parisien, versatile quarterback, was the veteran coach's lone excuse for traditional gloominess over his chances in the big game.

ORGANIZE VALLEY HOCKEY LEAGUE AT NEENAH NEXT WEEK

Appleton May Not Enter Team Because of Unfair Treatment Last Winter

Appleton may or may not be represented in a Fox River Valley Hockey league this year after the treatment accorded the local squad last year, promoters of teams of the last few year said. With the arrival of cold weather hockey players are starting practice and a meeting will be called for organization of a loop sometime next week at Neenah, according to reports from that city. Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, Appleton, Kimberly and Kaukauna will be asked to send representatives.

Last year Appleton topped a four team loop, excluding Kaukauna and Kimberly, with ease until a dispute arose and the three other squads "decided" to vote the strong local leaders out of the loop. "That was easy with a 3-1 vote against the locals. At that time the Appleton manager stated that he would not enter a team this year because of the unfair treatment which took away a valley championship from this city. However, he might change his mind or the local independent team of last winter which played several good games might join the loop as representatives of this city, adding players from the other squad.

BAY-RACINE GAME WON'T BE PLAYED

Racine Men Call Off Battle; Packers to Play Some Foe at Green Bay

BULLETIN
The Packers-Racine game was called off at noon Thursday. The mysterious Chicagoans, who were supposed to buy the Racine club; failed to come across with the purchase money and their option expired at 11 a. m. Thursday.

George Reutz, president of the Racine Franchise association, called quits and he told the Green Bay manager that no attempt would be made to stage the game in Racine.

The Packers management is making every effort for another game for Sunday, which if arranged, will be played in Green Bay. Definite announcement will be made within the next 24 hours.

With the state championship title tucked away again, the Packers are gunning for national honors and there is still a chance that the Big Bay Blues will be up there at the finish for the play off games between the first four leading clubs.

Eight now the Packers are in fourth position with only the Bears, Philadelphia and Pottsville ahead of them. Of the teams

STRANGER STEALS 12 DIAMONDS FROM HILBERT JEWELER

Loss Is Estimated at $1,566;
Police Seek Des Moines
Salesman

Willie E. J. McGraw, proprietor of the McGraw Jewelry store at Hilbert, stepped from the rear of his establishment for a few minutes last Monday afternoon to procure some oil for his stove, a stranger, who was in the store buying a watch, helped himself to a tray containing 12 diamonds and disappeared. The diamonds, which were in the showcase, are valued at $1,566, according to Mr. McGraw.

Police throughout the state are searching for J. H. Willard, Des Moines, Ia., an advertising salesman, for whom a warrant has been procured by Mr. McGraw.

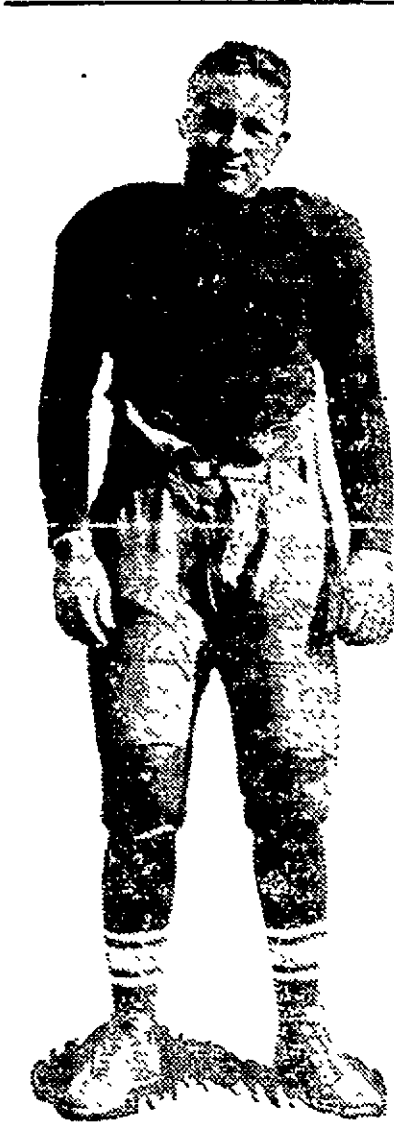

Willard, who had sold advertising in Hilbert several months ago, walked into the jewelry store last Monday afternoon about 2:30 and asked to look at some watches. He showed the jeweler a check which he claimed to have received from his employers and offered to pay for the watch in full if he found one to suit his fancy.

After looking over a number of watches, he finally selected one which sold for $60 and tendered the check for payment. At the completion of the sale Mr. McGraw left the store through a rear door for a few minutes to secure oil for a small stove he was burning in the store, and when he returned, the stranger was gone.

The owner did not discover his loss immediately, but when he did he notified the sheriff of Calumet-co at Des Moines. The latter immediately sent out a description of Willard throughout the state.

He is about 6 feet 2 inches in height and wore a dark suit, gray suit and gray hat, according to Mr. McGraw.

COAL COSTS BRITISH AS MUCH AS POTATOES

London, —(AP)— Anthracite, owing to the coal strike which began in May, now costs London housekeepers as much as potatoes and nearly the same as cooking apples.

Even soft coal costs more than cabbage, carrots and several other winter vegetables which are in demand after the fresh garden supplies are pinched by frost.

Anthracite by the hundredweight, at the beginning of cold weather, sold for approximately $1.50 to $1.75, while soft coal retailed at about $1.00 for a 112 pound sack.

All sale of coal is regulated by the government, under emergency regulations. Private dwellings are allowed not more than one hundredweight a week, unless there are unusual circumstances which must be explained to the authorities for additional permits.

Expect Red Hot Sessions In Congress This Winter

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington —Washington is looking forward to a red hot session of Congress this coming winter, as a sequel to Senator Jim Reed's activities as a primary election investigator.

Probably there will be no definite action until the 70th Congress meets, but there will be plenty of talk in what's left of the 69th.

It will be talk, too, in which big names will figure.

The men to whom the names belong are not all involved personally in the scandals Senator Reed has been digging into, but at least they've been referred to in his inquiry which will be an excuse for mentioning them again in debate at the capitol.

Senator Watson, Senator Moses, Senator Mayfield, Imperial Wizard Evans of the Ku Klux Klan, postmaster General New, ex-Postmaster General Will Hays, ex-Governor Goodrich of Indiana, Everett Sanders, Congressman Vane, Frank L. Smith of Illinois.

All these are characters, of one sort or another, in the story Senator Reed has been developing.

Sanders, secretary to the president, appears in the narrative only long enough to declare that rumors of a political deal between Watson and Mayfield were "ridiculous."

Nevertheless, all these names are woven into the story's plot and add interest as big names do.

The alien property custodian's office will be the tonic of discussion during the short session of Congress, also.

Senator Borah is head of a committee which was to have investigated it during recess, but Congress neglected to provide this committee with any funds, so it had to mark time.

Borah, however, who regards alien property custodianship with strong disapproval, has chafed violently at his inability to go ahead. He can be depended on to stir up a big fuss.

The Idaho senator can raise heck with the alien property custodian's office with a perfectly clear political conscience now.

When ex-Custodian Miller and ex-Attorney General Daugherty, two Republican appointees, alone were under fire, Republican members of Congress didn't consider it very clubby for Borah, a Republican himself, though a mighty independent one, to force the custodianship issue.

Now, however, that A. Mitchell Palmer, custodian under the late President Wilson, is being sued, with others, on the charge that he disposed of the Bosch Magneto Company properties for less than he should, it's different.

If the investigation is going clear lack to Democratic times, the Republicans can stand it better than they could before.

ORANGE CLASS CAGE MEET OPENS MONDAY

Faculty Enters Team for Fourth Squad; Lettermen
Act as Coaches

Appleton high school athletic fans will turn their eyes to caging Monday afternoon after the Orange jerseys used at Kaukauna Thursday are safely packed in the mothballs. The interclass meet will be held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and the rivalry is intense, especially since the faculty had made good its threat of entering a team as the fourth contender. All the teams will be out to whip the faculty squad while the battle for the school championship always is one of the best and closest staged at the high school gym all winter.

Practices for the tourney started this week, the sophomores opening Tuesday afternoon, the seniors Wednesday and the juniors Friday. The faculty team will not practice as the list of practice dates issued by the mentors reads, "faculty won't need any practice." However, they are attempting to steal a march by a game with the junior high school faculty squad Wednesday afternoon at Roosevelt high gym.

Letter men of past years are in charge of coaching the class squads. Cookson and Strutz handle the seniors; Lutz the juniors; Steinberg and Pfeiffer, the sophomores. Shields and Wright, the faculty. The faculty team is composed of Shields, Wright, Delforge, Grant and Ketchum.

The meet is open to all players in the various classes who have not won cage letters, provided they are eligible in every particular for the school team. It is an annual affair, always close and hard-fought, which brings about an intense, sportsmanlike rivalry between classes. This year is not expected to be an exception to others and should show the local coach his likely first squad material outside of his lettermen of last year.

Some of the best future varsity material is brought out as stars of the class meet and gets its varsity start through the meet.

LOUISVILLE CREW INVADES BAY CITY

Harley's Colonels Take Place of Racine Squad Which Cancelled Pro Game

Green Bay—The Louisville Colonels will play the Green Bay Packers here on Sunday. The Badger state champions were originally scheduled to invade Racine, but Wednesday afternoon the Racine pro football bubble busted flat as the Chicago purchasers failed to put up the necessary cash at the last minute.

The southerners should give the Bays some keen competition as Manager Bill Harley's team has a sprinkling of both veterans and youngsters, all of whom are capable of playing good football. Pete Stinchcomb, Palmer, Snells, Robinson and Gelson are listed among the Louisville stars.

The army of Packer fans in northeastern Wisconsin will welcome the chance to see the Blue and Gold perform on their home lot again this season. Although the tilt has been arranged on an eleven hour notice, it is expected that a big crowd will be on hand to greet the Blues, who since their last appearance at home, have bumped off the Chicago Cardinals and clinched the state pro championship by rolling the Milwaukee Badgers for a 21 to 0 loss.

NOW TRANSMIT PRINTED MESSAGES BY WIRELESS

Bordeaux, —(AP)— The transmission of wireless messages over a printing machine has been done with success over a distance of 9000 miles. The machine, which limits the work of the receiving operator to a deft manipulation of scissors to make the telegram ready, is working between the radio station at Croix d'Hins, built by the American army during war, and Madagascar.

The invention is conditional upon the complete elimination of parasites, the presence of which has heretofore restricted radio transmission to the Morse code.

What Are You Doing For Your Punny Child?

One Boy Gained 11 Pounds in 7 Weeks and Is Now Strong and Healthy

For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets—and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, Cod Liver Oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing helps like it.

But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11½ pounds in seven weeks, and now is healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents at Schlitz Bros. and all druggists—but be sure and insist on McCoy's—the original and genuine.

Give them to the sickly, frail child for 30 days and if they don't help—wonderfully, your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

Electric Railways, Many Of Which Were In The Hands Of Receivers 10 Years Ago, Are Coming Back; Business Increasing Rapidly

Cleveland—The electric railway industry of the United States, one-sixth of which was in the hands of receivers 10 years ago, has "come back."

Last year the electric railways of the country carried more passengers, exclusive of those they carried on busses, than for any previous year in history.

The trolleys have come back because they have co-ordinated bus service, carried a greater share of freight, and "sold" the service to the public on sound business principles.

CO-ORDINATE SERVICE
So say electric railway officials who gathered in national convention here.

Seven years ago, according to W. H. Sawyer, of East St. Louis, Ill., the new president of the National Electric Railway Association, 48 electric railway companies, involving more than $620,000,000 in stocks and bonds, went into the hands of receivers.

Today virtually every large property in the country is either out of receivership or emerging from it, Sawyer points out.

The several interurban lines throughout the country which failed during the last year, according to Sawyer, failed not because of a general diminution in profit in electric railway service but for reasons peculiar to themselves.

For instance, along several routes it was found that busses could better serve their patrons; other roads dropped out because they could not gain the freight business which scores of interurban lines throughout the country have found a necessary adjunct.

Bus service is becoming more and more a part of trolley service, the rail lines operating extensions in numerous cities and the interurbans over part of their routes. Thus

WITH BUSES LIKE THIS 4-PASSENGER, EIGHT-WHEELED VERSAIRE-WESTINGHOUSE GAS-ELECTRIC GIANT ON THE STREET, THE BEST WAY FOR A SMALL CAR OWNER TO GET TO WORK IS TO TAKE A BUS! THIS MODEL RECENTLY WAS PUT IN USE ON CLEVELAND STREETS, AND IS THE FIRST TO BE USED IN A LARGE CITY. TO THE RIGHT IS SHOWN W. H. SAWYER OF EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL., NEW PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL ELECTRIC RAILWAY ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA.

Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, an electric railway man, operates 800 busses as auxiliary service to the traction lines.

THEY ARE USING THE BUS

Selling the service is an important factor in electric railway success, said Britton I. Budd, president of the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee Railroad. On the North Shore line, the problem was undertaken through its employees, the experiment being to make every employee a salesman of the service. The employees, according to Mr. Budd, have entered the spirit of the competition and their bus have brought in valuable new freight.

In one cause, Budd cites, the wife of a trainman was responsible for the company's winning a large new account.

HELPED BY CONGESTION

A better future ahead for all public transportation services, despite the increasing number of private automobiles, was seen by George M. Clifford, Stone & Webster official, of Houston, Tex.

"Congestion in the streets is causing more and more people to leave the street car or bus to work, taking their automobiles for Saturday and Sunday," Clifford said. "With six or seven busses and street cars just ahead of him, the man with a small car often finds it hard to get to work on time. The street cars and busses make better time, and are winning the patronage of thousands of automobile owners in the cities."

Last year electric railways throughout the country carried more than 16,000,000,000 passengers, Clifford pointed out. The 3000 miles of urban track in the country in 1925 have grown to 45,000 miles, and the 35,000 employees of 44 years ago have become an army ten times that size. There are 125,000 cars and more than 20,000 busses now operated by electric railway companies. Capital invested runs well above $6,000,000,000.

SCORE LEGISLATURE ON SNOW ATTITUDE

A communication from the county board of Ashland, strongly condemning an alleged tendency of the legislature to pass legislation requiring the removal of snow from state highways, was read to the Outagamie-co board Tuesday and referred without comment to the highway committee. The communication said that as most counties have not provided ample funds for such purposes the legislation is a detriment rather than a constructive element. The Ashland board asks that Outagamie-co join in asking the legislature to refrain from passing more snow removal laws.

REQUIRE CHILDREN TO ATTEND SCHOOL

Warn Parents That Prosecution Will Follow Laxness in Matter

With reports from virtually every rural school in the county indicating some truancy, letters are being sent out over the signature of County Superintendent A. G. Meating warning parents that prosecution will result if children are not sent to school or allowed to attend.

This letter, it was pointed out, represents only the first step in the matter and if the condition is not corrected voluntarily the names of the parents are turned over to the sheriff and court action is taken.

Excuses for absence range from indifference on the part of the fathers and mothers through the scale to many cases where seasonally work is blamed for erratic attendance at classes.

"Except in cases of illness or where home conditions have brought about a very unusual situation that may account for temporary absence from school excuses will not be accepted, especially where there is the slightest indication of deliberate evasion of the law," Mr. Meating declared.

"Wherein states," he continued, "clearly specify the rules of school attendance and it is up to parents to see that their children do attend, or suffer consequences in court."

Let This Great Remedy Take All The Pain Out Of Rheumatism

Thousands Testify to the Relief it Brings. Many From Right Here in This Section

The Dreco man at the Schlicht Bros. Drug Store does not claim that Dreco will perform miracles. But he does say, and hundreds of folks right in this section will testify that he is right, that if the system is rundown and the body is filled with impurities which cause suffering and pain, Dreco will bring complete and permanent relief in nine out of every ten cases.

There are few ailments which cause more acute suffering than rheumatism, few complaints which are more difficult to relieve. Yet Dreco seldom fails to ease the pain, loosen the joints and muscles and give the poor sufferer once more, in many cases after remedies advertised exclusively for rheumatism had failed to prove beneficial.

Housework Was Burden

"Several months ago I was so troubled with rheumatism in the back and limbs my housework was a burden but Dreco soon relieved all the stiffness and pain and I have not suffered with rheumatism since," is the testimony of Mrs. Nick Helf, Little Chute, Wis.

Couldn't Sleep Because of Pain

"I was so badly crippled with rheumatism that I could scarcely walk and the pain was so great it often kept me awake at night. Now I am free of all my pains and feel fine in every way, thanks to Dreco," says Mr. Richard Warner, 427 So. River-st., Appleton, Wis.

Country Can Teach City Man 10 Lessons On Life

Portland, Me.—Ten lessons, at least, can the quiet city dweller learn from his country cousin.

So believes Miss Florence M. Hale of Augusta, Me., state supervisor of rural schools. She declares with pride that she is "rural minded."

That means, fundamentally, she says, "to be interested in the small affairs of your neighbors, and to be pleased to see a national authority on the subject. She can see life from both the city and the country points of view."

BORN IN FACTORY TOWN

Miss Hale is not a country woman in origin. She was born and reared in town. For more than 26 years, however, she has been teaching and directing rural schools, and she now is recognized as a national authority on the subject. She can see life from both the city and the country points of view.

The other day the question was put to her: "What may the city learn from the country?"

"First of all, an attitude toward life," she replied. "I feel the difference when I go to Washington or New York or any other city. There I feel a sense of futility."

"People who live all the time in the city accept it almost as a matter of course. From the country the city ought to learn that life is important and worth while and that the individual counts. In the country I get to feeling almost too important, and need jolts to curb my sense of hopefulness and accomplishment."

BIG AND LITTLE THINGS

"Second, the city may learn that the important things are not the sensational and glittering and big, but the simple things. Your own heart will tell many of these things to you if you listen."

"Third, the lesson of taking your time. Even in the busy season, farmers will stop an hour or two for a big family dinner. They will stop on the road to help a stranger repair his fender. They often put in longer hours from dawn to sunset—but they don't let time enslave them."

"Fourth, respect for physical toil."

City schools particularly are training their pupils for white collar jobs. But a Lincoln or an Edison comes along only once in millions of men. Most of us have to be soldiers in the ranks and sweat and take orders, and there shouldn't be any condescension toward hard work.

THE COUNTRY READS

"Fifth, attention to public affairs. The country knows what the state legislature and Congress are doing. City people often take pride in not knowing. The country reads the newspapers for the news, while the city looks at them to fill in moments of idle time."

"Sixth, thinking. I don't mean introspection, but turning over in your mind the ideas that come up. Part of this is the attentive reading of books. I believe that people who live in a whirl of work and entertainment, without thinking things over, come to lose the power of productive mental activity."

"Seventh, tolerance. This may sound peculiar, because the cities are given to criticism of rural intemperance and narrowness of outlook. But they are just as harsh on the things they aren't used to. Between the two, I believe country folks have the wider interests."

"Eighth, money. People everywhere overemphasize it. But I think there is a larger proportion of country people who rate money below happiness and other important things. City people handle more money and depend upon it for nearly every necessary thing, so it is natural if they are blinded by it."

"Ninth, the city may learn — from some country people, at least — to stay at home and pay attention to raising the children."

HUMAN TOUCH

"Last of all, and just as important as any, is the human touch. It is so difficult in the city. It is so easy and natural in the country. In the country and the villages we get together for gossip. We know all about our neighbors' finances and their children's love affairs and the new school teacher's clothes. But if anybody gets sick, the whole neighborhood is on hand to help. In such surroundings, we learn human nature. Knowing the world is nothing compared to knowing people.

CLERKS EXTEND THANKS TO COUNTY SUPERVISORS

PUBLIC LIBRARY SEEKS $500 FROM COUNTY BOARD

The library board points out that it needs this sum in assistance in sending out books to all parts of the county at request of readers. It is probable that the request will be discussed Thursday.

"The country can learn from the city, too. It can improve a great deal by imitating city ways. But that's another question."

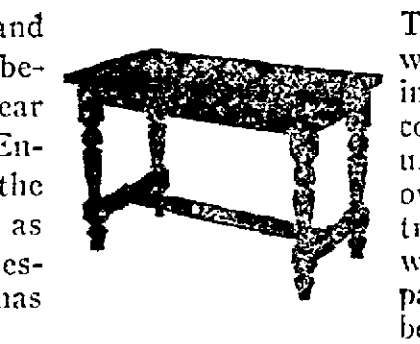

Important Announcement To All Interested In Radio

A new circuit has been developed by our laboratory and is ready for the public. A departure from the ordinary circuits and before you decide to purchase a radio we invite you to hear this new set at our display room and make any comparison you wish.

Our policy of selling direct from Manufacturer simplifies service and is also a saving. This in our estimation will be the method used in future radio distribution. A radio is an electrical instrument like the telephone and needs periodical attention by men especially trained in radio service.

Quality of tone and distinctness are unbelievable until you hear this arrangement. Entirely operated from the light-socket, making it as convenient as the present research in radio has developed today.

The methods in use now will seem extremely crude in 5 years from now. It is conceivable that the manufacturers will have their own chain of stores to distribute and service radio with men trained to the particular set to give the best service to the buyer.

We are also equipped to repair all makes of radio sets, at less cost than having same shipped back to the manufacturer. We can convert your present set to operate directly from the light socket, also our new complete line of console cabinets will accommodate any standard radio set. Improve your set for this season by getting these improvements and enjoy better radio reception.

Investigate our Radio now and don't wait till one week before Christmas to get the best service. Over 100 sets are in use in this city now.

For more information call 3373 or visit our plant, also watch for future announcements.

BLACK SQUIRREL, FIRST IN YEARS, KILLED THIS WEEK
Animal Will Be Mounted and Presented to High School Museum

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The first black squirrel known to be killed in years in this section of the state was brought to this city by Clyde Boyve of Weyauwega, who shot it near Stevens Point early this week. The beautiful animal, which is a little larger than the gray squirrel, is a coal black with plumed tail of the same hue. Mr. Boyve brought it to the city to Rev. F. S. Dayton who will send it to Chicago for mounting. Mr. Boyve will present it to the Weyauwega high school museum.

Older residents of this community remember when the black squirrel were nearly as plentiful as the gray and fox species. The annual hunts of the period of fifty years ago were interesting events. The hunt and double was one being to provide entertainment for the men and boys, of the other to thin out the hungry herds of squirrels which wrought such distressing havoc in the corn fields. Nuts they loved, these busy little beasts, but for variation in their nutty diet they craved a goodly supply of corn and they would gladly gnaw their way through corn crib and barn silos in order to obtain it. It was also played an important role in the diet of homesteaders of the day there was ultimate war declared and as a result today a black squirrel is a museum exhibit.

Hunts served as table conversation for days before and after captives were chosen to head the two sides and the day appointed. As early as possible the hunters began the day, meeting again at night at the town square to exchange tales and take the count of the squirrels brought in. The losing side was host to the winners at a dinner usually served at the village hotel.

MOODY MEMORIAL CHURCH ERECTED BY COMMON FOLK

Not a Single Wealthy Patron on Scroll of Chicago Congregation

Chicago—(AP)—Erected by a congregation whose scroll counts not a single wealthy patron, a million dollar Roman-Byzantine edifice stands near downtown Chicago as one of America's truly distinctive pieces of church architecture.

It is a memorial to the internationally known evangelist, D. L. Moody which will celebrate its first anniversary on Nov. 8.

THRIFT AND SIMPLICITY

Colossal yet unpretentious it represents the desire of its congregation and pastor, the Rev. P. W. Philpott, to embody in a building the stoniness and kindly personality of Moody, the simplicity of his life, the economy of his organization and a friendly and wholesome atmosphere in which would live the motto of his church, "Ever Welcome to This House of God as Strangers and the Poor."

Six stories high and with exterior and interior of red brick and terra cotta, the Moody church is semi-circular with a huge half dome covering the church proper. To the right is a two-story office and Sunday School annex.

Architectural beauty Arches in brick relief arranged above and below large windows of the same style are the only exterior ornamentation, and on the exterior side ten arched doorways lead from a concrete plaza to a curved foyer which surrounds the auditorium. To the rear, the church doors away to two story height with a row of arched doorways extending the width of the church, above which are a row of arched windows which light a long foyer.

Above the curved main-floor foyer is a second foyer surrounding the balcony, and on both foyers arched doorways lead to a fan of aisles which concentrate upon the pastor's platform and choir. The choir is banked in a high arch which is flanked by the pipes of the organ.

Great lunettes, each containing an arched window, pierce the side walls of the massive dome to flood the church with daylight while the seven main fixtures each seven feet in diameter and sixteen feet high are used. There are seats for 4,000 in the auditorium. Below is an assembly room which seats 1,500, and high to the rear of the auditorium is the pastor's study.

NATIONS PAY HONOR TO SOLDIER DEAD

drawn up in silence to stand rigidly for a minute at 11 o'clock the hour of the armistice eight years ago. The national salute of 21 guns was fired for all slanting nations. Throughout the nation, memorial services befitting the day marked gatherings in schools and churches and the momentary halt and silent tribute to the meaning of the day was interwoven even with prosaic business activities in many scattered industries.

FOCH GIVES MESSAGE

Paris—(AP)—"Always keep united and agreed" is the message of Marshal Foch given to Stephanie Luxembourg for the million men who fought under the marshal and now are dispersed to the four corners of the globe. The marshal's injunction is printed in the Matin Thursday on the occasion of Armistice day.

"But about that I am not afraid," the marshal's statement continues. "Veterans will always agree because they understand each other. That is what I told General Pershing when he announced to me that the legation would visit Paris next year."

"Let's hope there will be no incident," said General Pershing. "There are never incidents between veterans," I said, but he objected that there would be 30,000 Americans here.

"Think what 30,000 American boys in Paris means," Pershing added.

"All right," I said, "We'll shorten their stay in Paris and prolong the visits to the battlefields where the air is calm and healthy."

MONUMENT AT JANESVILLE

Janesville—(AP)—Business was practically suspended here today when the Lions club presented a memorial for the service men to the city. Unveiling ceremonies Thursday afternoon called for participation by many organizations and service men of the city and county. The memorial is a pedestal of granite surmounted by a figure of an overseas doughboy in action. On the sides are bronze tablets with 600 names of men who enlisted from Janesville for the world war. The unveiling address was delivered by Stephen Dolles and the ceremonies were presided over by Ralph Morse, president of the Lions club. In the evening all service men of the county will be given a dinner tendered by the citizens of Janesville and the waiters are thirty members of the chamber of commerce.

COMPLETE INSTALLATION OF TRAFFIC SIGNALS

Permanent installation of the traffic light signals on the corner of Col. George and Oneida streets was completed Wednesday evening by the Janesville Electric Co. All the signals with the exception of the one on the northwest corner were moved back two feet from the building line, while the fourth was suspended from the traction company pole. The control box on the northwest corner also was moved from Oneida street to Col. George street in front of the bank building, and the operator in the office operating the box to control traffic in all directions. This was all accomplished before.

Crowds Cheer Coolidges Thursday In Kansas City

Kansas City—(AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge and an official party arrived here at 8:35 Thursday morning on a special train from Washington for the dedication of the Liberty memorial, Kansas City's monument to war heroes.

Friendly crowds which lined the curbs on both sides of the streets from the Union station to the Hotel Muehlenberg welcomed the president and Mrs. Coolidge upon their arrival. A military escort comprising a troop of cavalry from Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, several regiments of boy scouts in uniform gave the event an appropriate Armistice day touch.

The president was taken directly from the train to the hotel and upon arrival there waited immediately to the suite reserved for him to rest until the reception committee called.

As the chief executive and Mrs. Coolidge passed through the streets a steady ripple of applause from the crowded curbs kept abreast of the procession. Small American flags were waved in profusion.

Five years ago, as vice president, he last came to Kansas City to participate with high military officers of the United States and war time allied nations in the laying of the Liberty memorial cornerstone.

The renowned "Coolidge luck" was commented upon as sunny skies prevailed in contrast with snow and wintry weather through which they passed on their trip from Washington. Reception committees congratulated the president some attributing the moderate temperatures to his "luck," the bright sun was carrying the mercury above the freezing point when the president arrived.

Senator Capper, Kansas, was one of the first callers at the hotel. He was followed a few minutes later by Governor and Mrs. Baker of Missouri. Entering their automobile from the hotel soon after ten o'clock to the accompaniment of cheers of the crowds, they drove the two miles to memorial. Crowds applauded them along the route.

About the stand staff war veterans, mothers and relatives of the war dead, reserve officers and boy scouts. Beyond for a quarter of a mile stood approximately 50,000 citizens from the southwest. The exercises reached all clearly through the loud speakers while the radio carried the music to uncounted thousands more.

After the prayer of dedication, R. A. Long, president of the Liberty memorial association, was then introduced as the presiding officer. Ignoring the coats and biting wind, the president stood on the platform bare headed, his overcoat discarded, and coat unbuttoned. The crowd had, by that time grown, according to official estimates to fifty thousand.

There was applause when he declared America was one and that all her soldiers in the war were Americans, whatever the color of their blood. His assertions that America must protect itself and the first duty of the Americans was to maintain the supremacy of all rights also drew applause.

CITY SILENT FOR MOMENT TO HONOR WORLD WAR DEAD

Flags appeared early Thursday morning before Appleton business places and on many houses as the city prepared to observe Armistice day. At 11 o'clock church bells and factory whistles told the citizens that it was time to pause for a moment of silent meditation in honor of the men and women who had made the supreme sacrifice.

The climax will take place Thursday evening when the Oney Johnston post of the American Legion sponsors an Armistice day jubilee for all World war veterans of Appleton as well as representatives of Outagamie-co posts. Several prominent Wisconsin Legionnaires are on the program. Musical numbers, comedy acts and reports of the post's drive for 600 members by Armistice day, complete the jubilee. The post in the county with the largest percentage membership of eligible men in its territory will receive a trophy donated by George Dame, past commander of the Johnston post.

MANY ARE SEEKING FARM DINNER RESERVATIONS

More than 150 reservations for the annual farm dinner sponsored by the Appleton Chamber of Commerce had been received Thursday morning. It was reported at the chamber offices. Invitations to the dinner were issued Monday.

The affair this year will be held on Thursday, Nov. 18, in the dining room of the First Methodist church. The speaker will be Carl Schurz Vrooman, Bloomington, Ill., publicist and scientific farmer. Mr. Vrooman was assistant secretary of agriculture under the Wilson administration.

If reservations continue to come in as fast they have the past two days, the attendance limit of 550 will be reached shortly, it is reported. No more than this number can be accommodated, so the advisability of securing an early registration is apparent.

Residence Keeps Hammond From Political Honor

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington—John Hays Hammond would be President Coolidge's pick for one of the commissioners of the District of Columbia if he had his voting residence here, according to talk around the White House executive offices.

In a physical sense the old mining engineer does live here rather more than half the time, in perhaps the most beautiful home in Washington.

He has another place at Gloucester, Mass., but officially he's a New Yorker. That lets him out as a candidate for a District of Columbia commissionership.

Hammond has in what he calls the "den," in his Washington chalet, probably the most remarkable collection of photographs in the world. "Den" suggests a small place but this is a very large room and, from top to bottom, all four walls are covered with framed pictures of the notabilities its owner has known personally in the course of his long and adventurous career in nearly every country on earth.

These were no ordinary folk. They were the kind who make history—kings, queens and presidents, emperors, admirals, and presidents of armies, lords and ladies, famous authors and artists, cabinet members, explorers, celebrities of every sort and description.

To the last one, these photographs are autographed to John Hays Hammond.

A multimillionaire and one of the world's foremost mining authorities, Hammond met all these great ones of the earth on terms of equality.

With some of them he has had business relationships. Others he has

Elk Comedy Cast Ready For Opening Performance

With only three more rehearsals remaining the cast of the Elks Jollies of 1926 is practically ready for its first performance at Fischer's Appleton theatre next Monday night. The show will be given two nights, Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Ruth McKennan, director of dramatics at Appleton high school will play the part of Lorraine Leffingwell, daughter of "Tom Leffingwell," who will be portrayed by Martin VanRooy. Lester Balliet will play the part of "Harry Brodshaw," lover of Lorraine.

During the past two weeks the various groups which are to appear in the production have been practicing individually but starting Friday night, the full cast of nearly 40 people will begin working in unison.

The minstrel part, the prologue of this year's show, promised to supply the audience with an abundance of fun. In this section of the show, "Tambo," Chamberlain, a former professional actor and well known in Appleton for previous successes, Eyrone Serogy, a soft shoe dancer and Robert Connolly, Nelson Gallipeau, Howard Conn and Ferd Brownson, will be among the entertainers. George Morey, a funmaker in last year's show, will be one of the emcees this year. Martin Van Rooy and Lester Balliet, will be two of the soloists. In addition to those already named there will be a vocal chorus composed of Roger Harriman, Carl Zuehlke, Sylvester Harriman, Richard Joyce, Earl Woodson, Cletus Vander Heyden, Dexter Chafe, Peter Deland, John Zussman, Cyril Tierney, William Greenstein, Francis Rooney, Richard Chafe, Albert Liethe and Clement Gerhart.

known intimately socially. He was American envoy at King George's coronation, for instance, and, therefore, he points to it—is the photograph George gave him, with his royal signature on it.

Here's the visage of some Russian potentate whose acquaintance he made while prospecting for gold in Siberia.

There are the portraits of three men with whom he was sentenced to be hanged for rebellion against the government of the now defunct Transvaal Republic. They finally got off, but Hammond recalls that it was a disagreeable experience.

Hammond isn't at all cheery about his acquaintanceships.

He's a quiet little man of 71, who spends a large part of his spare time visiting with the children at a municipal playground near his Washington mansion. He's extraordinarily fond of children.

His own are grown up now. His son John Hays Hammond, Jr., is an inventor, who specializes on the radio. His daughter, Natalie, is one of the most original—young women in Washington society.

So Hammond, the elder, finds his entertainment with the neighbors' youngsters. They worship him. He's to be seen any pleasant morning at that playground with a procession of them tagging after him. He can be as cold as a clam with grownups, when he feels like it, but he never gets tired of babies.

Hammond is slightly bitten by the literary bug.

He writes occasionally for the magazines—good stuff, too, mostly about the Wild West as he used to know it. He's also preparing his memoirs.

This latter should be great. It's doubtful if another man can be found who can equal the amazing number and variety of intimate personal contacts he's had with interesting people or the wide range and thrilling nature of his adventures.

WISSMAN IS APPOINTED TO POLICE COMMISSION

Appointment of L. O. Wissman as a member of the police and fire commission to complete the unexpired term of Judge Fred W. Heinemann was announced Thursday by Mayor Albert C. Rule. Judge Heinemann tendered his resignation early in the week. He was appointed to the commission May 1, 1923, and his term would not have expired until May, 1928. Judge Heinemann resigned because the statutes do not permit a justice to hold a public office, it was reported.

IRREGULAR STOCK PRICE MOVEMENT

Buyers Await Outcome of Several Important Dividend Meetings

New York—(AP)—Pending the outcome of several important dividend meetings traders showed little disposition to buy stocks Thursday and prices drifted irregularly lower at the opening. U. S. Steel and General Motors held firm but initial declines, ranging up to a point, were recorded by Atchafon, New York Central, Allied Chemical and other representative issues.

Bidding for selected issues was resumed in the subsequent dealings, although price movements still showed considerable irregularity. The announcement of record-breaking cash loadings for the last week in October steadied the carrier stocks despite the absence of fresh buying. Atchafon, however, quickly recovered its losses and a few others worked fractionally higher. The uncertainty surrounding current operations of the steel industry was reflected in mixed price movements for these shares. U. S. Steel and Youngstown moving ahead while Republic and Lading lost 1 to 2 points. Buying of the food stocks included Continental Baking, Borden and Postum, Sugar and Jewel Tea which rose from 1 to more than 3 points. Low-priced public utilities also were in demand. The foreign market was marked by a five point drop in Italian lire.

Buying of the foreign market principally to stocks which command considerable public favor at times, notably the oils, public utility, mercantile and food groups. Professional traders supported the advance in these stocks when purchasing orders began to make their appearance, resulting in a number of gains ranging from 1 to 3 points. Railroads were neglected, and scarcely any interest was shown in the market pending the outcome of the dividend action on General Motors Thursday.

The renewal rate on call loans was unchanged at 4 1/2 per cent.

The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 1,200,000 shares.

LAWRENCE AIMS TO MAKE LEADERS OF ITS STUDENTS

Dr. Wriston Tells Civic Clubs of Ideals Behind His School

The problem facing Lawrence college is how best to employ its equipment and resources in terms of maximum yield of character and leadership. President Henry M. Wriston said in an address Wednesday noon before a combined gathering of the Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions clubs in the Conway hotel, sponsored by the Kiwanis. The address comes almost a day after Dr. Wriston's inauguration into the presidency of the local college, and he took opportunity to sum up the year's achievements.

President Wriston commended the close association that exists between "law and college" and said it was "very desirable that the town should keep in contact with college progress." However, he said, it is desirable that "facts rather than rumors be the foundation of that contact."

NOT GIRLS SCHOOL

The rumor that Lawrence is soon to be a "girls' college," he pointed out, is totally without foundation. An official check of the students enrolled reveals that there are but three more girls than boys in the freshman class. Despite advanced standards of admission, there is a total enrollment this year in the college of liberal arts only 45 less than a year ago, while the conservatory of music is greater.

President Wriston answered the report that the curriculum has been made over so that Lawrence has become a "cultural college," he said he was ready to assert that the changes have increased, rather than decreased, "vocational efficiency." Not a single course of vocational content has been cancelled. No courses have been dropped except those which had been printed in the catalog but were not actually offered. It does not prohibit specialization, but opens the way for more specialization by the student than ever before, and puts that opportunity for specialization at a time when students are most capable of getting its maximum benefit, in the last two years. It is just a more orderly and easily manageable arrangement of the college work, with the insistence that the students get a broad foundation upon which to build.

The function of a college, he continued, is to train people for leadership. "Either we are going to attempt to develop leaders or we are not. If we are, it is not enough to mumble old shibboleths—we must be awake to the current situation, we must be about the business in as intelligent a manner as possible."

TWO THEORIES

There are two opposing theories of training for leadership by colleges, he said. One is to take all who come and do the best one can with them. The other is to "take those who are physically, mentally and in terms of character, qualified for leadership, and develop them."

Lawrence must approach the solution from a different point of view than a public institution. It is limited in equipment and resources, and its problem is "how best to employ that equipment and those resources in terms of maximum yield of character and leadership." Viewed in those terms, he said, "the policy of all-inclusiveness in admission defeats the objects of the college."

"We know definitely what happens when we admit people of low mental attainment or ambition," continued the president. "Of 64 admitted with high school records of 80 or below, only 18 came back at the end of the sophomore year, only 8 were not on probation, and only 1 had a good academic record. Another year, of 25 admitted on probation, 11 were dropped in the freshman year, 5 withdrew, 9 remained for the sophomore year, and not one had as many credit points as hours."

"Recently I was called to an indignation meeting on the grounds that we had violated the proprieties and the principles of democracy by dropping a boy from college for no good cause. I knew his record was bad. On investigation, I found that he fulfilled, in the two quarters of last year, one of his requirements, and that, if he continued at that rate, he would graduate from Lawrence in a little over 100 years."

The selective principle is not new to Lawrence, Dr. Wriston stated, but was established by President Plantz before his death, when the college admitted only students from the upper fourth-fifths of their class. We are simply carrying that idea a step further on the basis of experience gained since the experiment began."

HELP THE ABLE

"How can we train leaders when 80 per cent of our energy goes into pulling along 'lame ducks'?" How can we train leaders by devoting attention to the followers, by wasting energy on the indolent, by taking time to detect the characterless and untrustworthy? How would it profit the farmer to let the fertile field of good corn go to weeds for lack of cultivation, and spend his time, energy, machinery, and fertilizer on the barren acreage?

"Look about in the colleges. What is being done for the specially gifted student? Is a pace set that leads him to exert and develop his powers? Or is he given the same tasks and less attention than the dullard? If you set out to stifle ambition and destroy leadership, how better could you achieve it?" More attention to the specially gifted student would pay enormous dividends in terms of leadership.

"The law of diminishing return works here as in economics. With given equipment, given resources, given energy, you reach that position of diminishing returns in terms of individual development and capacity before you realize it. An institution which up to 1910 graduated over 65 per cent of those who matriculated, today has double the student body, and the percentage of graduates has dropped to below 49 per cent. Such figures give clear demonstration of the fact that there is a definite relationship between liberal admission and academic morality. Applying this to Lawrence, it means that we would influence more lives effectively by reducing the loss of students 20 per cent than by admitting 70 per cent more into the freshman class and continuing ing to lose them at our present rate."

Turning them to a discussion of the rearrangement of the Lawrence curriculum, President Wriston said, "if we are to train leaders, there must be breadth as well as depth."

"Some people who want only vocational studies want football; they say it is important. Why? For what vocation does it prepare? It is part of a general training, just like the 'cultural' studies. As football develops courage, cooperation and coordination, so these develop appreciation, taste and interest."

NEED BROAD TRAINING

"Many of the ills of today arise because men did not recognize the social implications of courses of action. The factory system is an illustration. The perfectly dreadful public buildings that disgrace our communities and cities is another. They are the fruit of leadership that had no esthetic sense. They are not nearly so much the results of graft or speculation as of ignorance as to what is artistically good and really beautiful."

"Thirty years ago there was not much use for appreciation of art and music, or of aesthetic courses in general. Today, however, shorter office hours, and opportunities for travel, carries many to these things, and artists come among us."

"Life is enriched as we master one medium after another. A rounded life, a life spiritual and aesthetic and intellectual is more fruitful in economic progress, and we know that the stupidities in our economic arrangements are largely due to narrowness of outlook that would not see the consequences of social ventures."

"Breadth of training is a form of economic insurance. We have the testimony of many that technically trained youngsters are hard to fit into an organization. They think they know something and have a tendency to get into a rut early in life. 'The incomes of university graduates show that those who get undergraduate professional training get lowest rewards financially. Those, save teachers, with graduate professional training get highest rewards of any of the professions. Physicians, lawyers and bankers are near the top. This shows that liberal arts graduates get higher average income than graduates of engineering or other special schools."

"The broadly trained man is more flexible, more ductile, and knows he must learn the business. His skill is in rapid acquisition and application of sound sense to a new situation. 'For many, many vocations, no technical training is possible. There has been an enormous increase in the number of gainful occupations in our modern life. A decade ago there were 9,000; now there are 10,000. This is not an argument against vocational training, but against universal vocational training. There is a great need for some with training more liberal."

BOARD MEMBERS OBJECT TO CLAIM FOR DAMAGES

Indications are that a claim for property damage and personal injuries amounting to $400.00 by Ervin Thies will meet opposition from the county board of supervisors. A member of the board declared on the floor that contrary to allegations so far forth in the communication there was a warning light posted at a culvert near the McCune farm in town of Deer Creek the night when Mr. Thies declares he went into an open ditch in the road. The matter was referred to the highway committee.
